JUDGMENT

Whole Kingdoms and Nations

CONCERNING THE

RIGHTS, POWER, and PRIVILEGES

OF

K I N G S

RIGHTS, PRIVILEGES, and PROPERTIES

OF THE

PEOPLE:

SHEWING.

The Nature of Government in general, both from God and Man. An Account of the British Government, and the Rights and Privileges of the People in the Time of the Saxons, and fince the Conquest. The Government which God ordain'd over the Children of Israel; and that all Magistrates and Governors proceed from the People, by many Examples of Scripture and History, and the Duty of Magistrates from Scripture and Reason. Eleven Emperors, and above fifty Kings deprived for their Evil Government. The Rights of the People and Parliament of Britain, to resist and deprive their Kings for evil Government, by King Henry's Charter, and many Examples.

The Prophets and ancient Jews Strangers to absolute Passive Obedience; refisting of arbitrary Government is allow'd by saveral Examples in Scripture, by most Nations, and by undeniable Reason.

A large Account of the Revolution; with feveral Speeches, Declarations, and Addresses, and the Names and Proceedings of ten Bishops, and above fixty Peers, concern'd in the Revolution before King James went out of England

Several Declarations in Queen Elizabeth's Time of the Clergy in Convocation, and the Parliament who affished, and justified the Scotch Franch, and Dutch, in relisting of their evil and deltructive Princes.

Recommended as proper to be kept in all Families, that their Childrens Children dren may know the Birth Right, Liberty and Property belonging to an Englishman: And that they may have a just Notion of Government and Ohedies, to according to Scripture, Law, and undeniable Reason

BIRMINGHAM

Printed for J. COTTON, in Shrewsbury; B. HASLEWOOD, it Bridgnorth; R. BAILEY, in Lichfield; S. UNETT, in Wal-werbampton; and T. Aris, in Birmingham

TUDGMEN OFTAKE BUILDINGS our oningionoph real lower, and latvilled complete the Contract Contract the server of the same of the latest and Mon. Au Account of the Strick Covernment, and the Rights and Palvileges of the Cart that I imp of the Samur, and buce the Course. I be de murant solich Gol orden't ever the Chaine of Free lend of grad Marifulter and Consequent affected first theopie, by arrow Eva uples of Scriptore and If hoth, got the property Lighter is from Scripture and Masson. Bases and across file along deprived for their Fell Class per att a fire st fine of the Penpleased Parising of a way to relative a deprive wheir Kings for evil Gorgannes a, by King I'l at a Charter, and und v Lyamaples. Service and our ent Peres stangers to about In The Obelone; sufficient a substrately experience is also a disc by at fixengies in Sea poure, by such Asslore, and as arrithmable to be. Buy Adaction of the Merc, and a first first Machen. Dellaralone, and deflection, and the house and afternounce of the Banger, pad short our y form, consult of he first month out being King James basiness to madening word I was retouched to the first of the state of the grant of the gra April to the flower of the state of the stat Letter and I the graphy to be the see the property of the story of the party Chill they was been the libra level levery and Porter fraging to be Leading and the state of the st Organia er million ta Son et aleu era verte ve Correspination of the street. It is at a control of

P. Barrist, I. Sarbial L. Luca A.

P

The CONTENTS.

Paragraph THE Nature of Go-1. to 6. Vernment in gene-Government, and of the Rights and Privileges of the People, in the Time of the Saxons, and fince the Conquest.

Par. 6. An Account of the British ral both from God and Man.

Par. 7. Italy, Germany, Switzerland, England, and the Jews, have been under divers Forms of Government.

P.r. 8. to 17. included. Par. 19, 21. to 38. included. True Maxims of Government.

Par. 18. The Power of the Crown only a Trust.

Par. 20. Britain, a mixed limited Monarchy.

Par. 39, to 46. included. Deferibing the Government which God ordained over the Children of Israel

Par. 46, 47. The fundamental Right of all Nations afferted in the Choice of their G vernors, or Forms of Government.

Par. 48 Cæsar and Tacitus's Description of the Liberty and Customs of the ancient Britons, that they had no Monarchs, but Councils and Magistrates.

Par. 49. Monsieur Mezeray's Account of the Manners of the ancient Germans: His mournful Speech to a Gentleman in King William's Reign, of the miserable Condition of the French.

Par. 50, 51, 52. The Election of Magistroses and Kings, prov'd to be in the People; But more particularly in Great Britain, before and fince the Conquest.

Par. 53. The Right of the People and Parliament of Britain to resist and depose their Kings for evil Government; prov'd from King Henry's Charter, and from an Act of the 12th of Richard the Second, and by many Examples

Par. 54, 55, 56. The Power of our Parliaments, by the 25th and 28th of Henry the Eighth, and by the 13th of Elizabeth.

Par. 57. by a Law, An 787, Kings were to be elected by the Parliaments or States.

Par. 58. William the first was admitted upon Conditions by the People.

Par. 59, 60. The Law superior to the King, from Bracton, a famous Lawyer in Henry the Third's Reign.

Par. 61. The Power of the King, by the Laws of Edward the Confessor.

Par. 62 William Rufus, Henry the First, and Stephen, were chosen by the People; and Henry the Fourth, Fifth and Sixth, were Kings (only) by Act of Parliament.

Par, 63. 64. The Compact with William, call'dthe Conqueror, Henry the First and Stephen.

Par. 65. The original Compact with our Kings.

Par. 66. Succession gives no Right to Kings, but according to the original Compact.

Par

Par. 67. The Excommunication and Curfe, made by King Henry the Third, the Nobility, &c. upon all the Infringers of Magna Charta.

Par. 68. Magna Charta only an Abridgment of our ancient Laws and Customs.

Par. 69, 70, 71. The Nobility and Parliament of England affert the Laws and Liberties of England.

Par 72. King James's Speech, A. D. 1609. declaring the Obligation of a King. Par. 73,74 The common Right of the Subject, declared by Je-veral ancient Lawyers.

Par. 75, 76, 78, 79. Our Kings, and their Power from the Laws, declared by several famous Lawyers, and by Jeveral Acts of Parliament.

Par. 77. Six Judges, with the King's Serjeant at Law, and one of the King's Council at Law, were condemn'd by Parliament, and executed for giving their Opinion contrary to Law, in Richard the Second's Time.

Par. 80. King Henry the Eighth acknowledged the Power of the Parliament.

Par. 81. The Judges of the Land, not to obey the King contrary to Low, under the Penalty of Treafon.

Par. 82. The Rights and Liberties of the Subject from the Act of the 1st of William and Mary, in 13 Articles, with a Clause excluding a Popish Prince, or any marrying a Papist, from the Throne.

Par. 83, 84. All Government, Authority, and Magistracy, proceeds from the People, and they have Authority to difpossess them, or alter the Succollion upon very urgent Gaufes, of which some Scripture Instances.

Par.

S

fe

Par.

b

d ti

to n

Par.

Par.

1

-

t

Par

Par

. Par

Par

Par 85, to 100 included. Above fifty Kings, and eleven Em. perors, deprived for their evil Government, in France, Spain, Holland, Portugal, Denmark, Poland, Rome, Germany, Scotland, and England.

Par. 101, to 107 included. All Magistrates and Governors proceed from the People, by many Examples from Scripture.

Par. 108, 109, 110. Reasons for Resistance.

Par. 111. The Duty of all Magistrates, from Scripture and Reason.

Par. 112 St. Chrysoftom's Exposition on the 13th of Romans, Pindar, Orpheus, Plato, Ariftotle and Cicero, their De-Scription of just Government, and of Obedience to the Laws.

Par. 113. No absolute Authority allow'd by Scripture.

Par. 114. The Laws were made by the People, in the Reign of Par. 115, to 122. included. Reasons against absolute Passive-Obedience.

Par. 123. The Bishops refuse to disown to King James, their inviting over the P. of Orange.

Par. 124. The Archbishop of Canterbury and eight Bishops, pre-Jent King James's Articles, very near the same with that of the Prince of Orange's Declaration.

Par. 125. The Bishops refuse to Jign an Abborrence of the Prince

of

of Orange's intended Inva-

Par. 126. The Prince of Orange's Speech to the Gentry of Somer-feishire and Dorsetshire.

Par. 124. The Bishop of Canterbury went to the Tower, and demanded the Keys of the Lieutenant, and delivered them to the Lord Lucas.

Par. 127 Prince George of Denmark, Duke of Grafton, Duke of Ormond, Lord Churchill, &c. went over to the Prince at Sherborn-Caftle.

Par. 129 Princess Anne, (our late gracious and good Queen) with the Lady Churchill, Lady Berkley, and the Bishop of London, went to the Forces in the North, who declared for the Prince of Orange. The Declaration of thirty Lords Spiritual and Temporal, which they made at Guild-Hall, Dec. 11. 1668. together with their Names, which they sent to the Prince of Orange.

Par. 130. The Address of the Lieutenancy of London to the Prince, Dec. 11. 1688.

Par. 131. The Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Common-Council's Address to the Prince.

Par. 132. The Names of ten of the Privy-Council and Peers who made an Order on the 14th of Dec. 1668, for all Irish Soldiers to deliver up their Arms.

Par. 133, 134. The Duke of Grafton, by Order of the Lords, went with a Regiment of Foot on the 14th of Dec. to take Tilbury Fort, from King James's Irish Soldiers. On the 17th, King James discharged a Popish Bishop out of Newgare. Sir George Treby, Retorder of London's Speech in the Name of the City, to the Prince, Dec. 20. 1688.

Par. 135. to 139. included. About fixty Peers fign an Affociation to the Prince. Fiftyfour Lords Spiritual and Temporal, made an Order, Dec. the 22d, for 'Squire Gwin to fign fuch Orders as they should, from time to time, make. On the 23d of Dec. King James went from Rochester. Address of the aforesaid Peers to the Prince of Orange, on the 25th of Dec. On the 9th of Jan. following, about thirty Lords, and 80 Gentlemen of Scotland signed a Paper to the fame Purpose.

Par. 140, 141, 142. The Convention ordered the Thanks of both Houses should be returned to his Highness, in the Behalf of the whole Nation, &c. and order'd a Day of Thanksgiving for the great Deliverance, &c. On the 28th of Jan. the Commons voted the Throne vacant; and on the 6th, the Lords confented to the faid Vote.

Par. 143. The Word Abdicated explain'd.

Par. 144, 145. The Lords Spinitual and Temporal, and Commons, order'd the Prince and Princess of Orange to be proclaimed King and Queen.

Par. 146. The Declaration of the Nobility and Gentry, and Commonelity at Nottingham.

Par. 147. Our Bishops, Clergy, Nobilty, &c. are damn'd, who had a Hand in the Revolution, according to the Doctrine of absolue Passive Obedience.

Par.

Par, 148. The Doctrine of Jure Par, 167. The Difference between Divino, never heard of 'till our Case and that of the first James the First's Reign.

Par. 149. No absolute Passive-Obedience in the Time of the Children of Israel, proved by many Examples of their resisting their Kings.

Par. 150. The Primitive Chriftians, and others, resist their Emperors for their Tyranny.

Par. 151, including 154. Several Declarations in Queen Elizabeth's Time, of the Convocations of the Clergy, and the Parliament of England who justify the Protestants in their resisting of their evil Princes, who gave her Money to affift the Scotch, French, and Dutch Protestants. And the Bishops and Clergy of England affifted the Protestants of France in King Charles the First's Reign.

Par. 155. The Protestant Princes of Germany refist their Em-perors.

Par. 156, .157, 158. Bi/bop Jewel, Luther, Melancton, St. Chrysostom, &c. allow of Refistance.

Par. 159, 162. Bishop Bilson and Bishop Abbot allow of Resistance.

Par. 160, 161. Seven Princes and twenty four Protestant Cities resist their Emperor.

Par. 163, 164, 165. Zuinglius, one of the first Reformers, Lucifer de Cagliari, St. Athanafius, and St. Austin for Resistance.

Par. 166. The Success and good Consequence of Resistance in Several Count ries.

primitive Christians.

Par. 168. The Prophets and ancient Jews, as well as the primitive Christians, Strangers to the Doctrine of absolute Passive Obedience.

ril.

.

57

-1

3

E

94

213

t

t

A

W

At

gi

ış

ef

16 fö

34

怕

Hq

th

額

£0

翻

M

Re

26

Di

18 thi

Vk2 G ne

Par. 169. If all Resistance be unlawful, then both Jews and the primitive Christians are guilty of Rebellion.

Par. 170. Absolute Obedience due only to our Laws. To allow Passive Obedience to be reviv'd in any other Sense, is to suffer the Queen and both the Convention-Houses of Parliament to be call'd Rebels and Traitors.

Par. 171. Just Resistance founded in Self-Defence, absolute Submission a kind of Self-Murder.

Par. 172. to Par. 178. included. Several Reasons against the Passive Doctrine.

Par. 179. The Legislature, the Ordinance of God in Britain, and the executive Power in our Kings.

Par. 180. The Doctrine of absolutePassive Obedience disprovd, by contradicting the glorious Attributes of God, &c.

Par. 181 to 184. included. The Patrigrchal Scheme confidered and refuted

Par. 185. An Objection that if Government be disturb'd for unlawful Proceedings, &c. bow can it be safe? answered.

Par. 186. Rulers or Subjects, overturning the Constitution by Parce, resist the Ordinances of God, &c.

THE

nt

0

10

be ty

ve vo

7-nt rs.

ber.

ed.

he

the

in,

in 10-rd, ous

The

red

if

for טזט t-by

es of

E

the continue of the second

THE

JUDGMENT

OF

Whole Kingdoms and Nations, &c.

Overnment in general, as ordained and instituted by God, is circumferibed and limited by him to be exercised according to the Laws of Nature, in Subferviency to his own Glory, and the Benefit of Mankind. All Rulers are confined by the Almighby and supreme Sovereign, to exert their governing Power, for the promoting his Service and Honour, and to exercise their Authority for the Safety, Welfare and Prosperity of those over whom they are established. Tho there were no previous Compacts and Agreements between Princes and People as to these, yet Princes would be obliged to observe them, forasmuch as they are settled and determined by the Law and Appointment of the divine Legillator, and of the universal Sovereign. Whosoever therefore refuseth to govern, in Subordination unto, and for God, and in order to the Protection and Benefit of the Community, cealeth to answer the Ends unto which Magistracy was instituted, and for which rectoral Authority is establish'd over, and among Men. Nor last in the Choice or Power of any Society, at their erecting the Forms of Government, under which they are contented to live, and at their nominating the Persons to whom they commit the Right of administring Justice towards, and over themselves, and of withstanding and avenging Injuries offered them by others; to enlarge and extend the Power of those, whom they constitute their Rulers, beyond the Limits and Boundaries by which God hath flated and confined Magistrates in the Charter of Nature and Revelation. Though People, may both then, and afterwards, abridge themselves, as they think meet, in things under their own Disposal, and either contract or enlarge the Ruler's Power, in reserence to what they have a Right to retain or depart from, for the real or imagined Benefit of the Community; yet they can no ways interpole in the Disposal of the Rights which belong unto God, and which he hath incommunicably referved to himself; nor eath they confer those Measures and Degrees of Authority upon those whom they elect and advance to Magistracy, which God hath antecedently precluded the one from bestowing, and the other from receiving. For Example, no Body or Society of Men, can transfer a Power unto those whom they select and set apart from among themselves to be Rulers over the Community; by Virtue whereof those vested with Magisterial Authority, can withdraw their Subjects from their Allegiance to God, or act arbitraily in prescribing and imposing what Religion they please, or destroy the meanest Person, saving upon a previous Crime,

the

the

tra it

211 cla

So

ple jui

no

TO

C

Rt

of Fo

by

by

to

ca

VC

gn

de

fti

re

po

th

no

L

T

fo

th

tic

CC

A

th

CI

VE

th

0

Se

gi

in

th

ti

C

and a just Demerit.

1. . . . . . . . . . . . .

2. No Man of common Sense can imagine, that at the first Propagation of Mankind, there were such Governments as are amongst us at this Time. But in those Times each Father, without being subject to any superior Power, governed his Wise, Children and Servants, according to his Will and Pleasure. Now it seems very probable, that even at the Time of the Deluge, there was no Magistracy or civil Constitution, but that the Government was lodged only in each Father of his Family: For it is scarce to be imagined, that such abominable Disorders should have been introduced, where the Power of Magistracy and Laws was exercised; and it is observable, that after once the Rules of Government were constituted, we do not find Mankind in general, run into such Enormities, of which God Almighty was obliged to purge the World by an universal Punishment. Puffenders Introduction to the History of Europe, Page 1.

3. Now God having, in the Institution of Magistracy, confined such as shall be chosen Rulers, within no other Limits, in reference to our civil Concerns, fave that they are to govern for the Good of those over whom they come to be established; it remains free and entire to the People at their first Erection of, and Submission to Government, to prescribe and define what shall be the Measures and Boundaries of the publick Good, and unto what Rules and Standard the Magistrate shall be restrained, in order to his defending and promoting the Benefit of the Society of which he is created the civil and political Head. And every one being equally Master of his own Property and Liberty, antecedently to their Agreement with one another, and to the Compact of the Universality, or at least of the Majority with him, or those whom they call to rule over them; it evidently follows, that those who come to be cloathed with Magistracy, can lay claim to no more Authority over the Liberty, or pretend to no more Right in and over the Property of that Body Politick, than what the Community conferred upon them, and doth voluntarily divest themselves of, upon the Prospect of the Advantages arising to them from their living in Societies, and under Magistrates. We must suppose all Mankind to have been infatuated, if they should have submitted themselves to the Jurisdiction of one, who had no antecedent Right to command them, meerly in order to h

d

t

n

2, ft

re

W

C

is

e

as

l,

1-

in 10 d d

e

to r-

of ne

e-

fe

at

m

re

at 1-

g

S.

y

10

O

ir

their being in a worse Condition than they previously were: And therefore seeing the Power, Extent and Latitude of the Magistrate's Power must awe its Original to some Grant of the People, it is incumbent upon him to prove and justify the several Degrees and Measures of Authority and Prerogative which he pretends to claim. And what he cannot derive from some Concession of the Society, must be acknowledged to remain still vested in the People, as their referved Privilege and Right. And whatever injurious Power he affumes and exercises over them, which he cannot prove their Surrender of from themselves unto him, argues not only his departing from the Compact betwixt him and the Community, by Virtue whereof he was ordained and created their Ruler, but it renders him guilty of an Invation upon the Rights of the whole Society, and upon every individual Member of it. Force or Conquest give no just nor legal Title over a People, by which the Conqueror becomes their Magistrate, until they, by some Consent, either tacit or explicit, declare their Submission to, and Acquiescence in him, upon the best Terms which they can obtain, and that he is willing to grant. And as no civil Government is lawful, but what is founded upon Compact and Agreement between those chosen to govern, and them who condescended to be governed; so the Articles upon which they first stipulate the one with the other, become the Fundamentals of the respective Constitutions of Nations, and together with superadded politive Laws, are both the Limits of the Ruler's Authority, and the Measures of the Subjects Obedience. To extend the Governor's Right to command, and Subjects Duty to obey, beyond the Laws of one's Country, is Treason against the Constitution, and Treachery to the Society whereof we are Members: And to diffolve the Ties by which Princes stand confined, and overthrow the Hedges by which the reserved Rights, Privileges and Properties of the Subjects are fenced about, tempts every Prince to become a Tyrant, and to make all his Subjects Slaves. All previous Agreements, Stipulations and Laws, are made infignificant by that pernicious and adulatory Doctrine of Non-resistance, when cur Rights are arbitarily invaded, and the Constitution and Government openly attacked. Such a Doctrine tricks and cheats those that were antecedently free, into a Noose, and State of Thraidom and Bondage, under the specious and gilded Pretence of the divine Rights of Princes.

4. As it is by Virtue of Compacts, Stipulations. Compromises and Agreements, that all legal Governments have their Original and Establishment, that various and distinct Forms obtain in different Countries, and that a Title and Right to exercise Authority, and the Method of arriving at it, is provided for and procured, so every Subject's Allegiance is first owing to the Constitution, and to the Ruler only, in the Force and Virtue of what every Member of the political Society is bound unto, by the

erms

B 2

Terms of the original Pact and Sottlement. Abstracting from the Constitution, and the Obligations which lays us under no Man can challenge a Right of commanding us, nor do we owe him any Duty of Subjection and Obedience. Wholoever he be that under a Pretence of being constituted Sovereign, does invade and subvert the fundamental Laws of the Society, he does thereby, iple facto, annul all the legal Right he had to govern, and abfolves all, who were before his Subjects, from the legal Engage ments they were under of yielding him Obedience; so that the immediate and natural Effect of a Prince's claiming what the Rules of the Constitution are so far from entitling him unto that they preclude him from it, is the depriving himself of all Right to claim any thing, and a restoring of the People to their State and Condition of primitive Freedom; of which, as they only divested themselves by and upon the Terms of the Constitution, fo they did not depart from it any longer than that should be kept facred and inviolable, nor any further than was covenanted and stipulated in, and by the Terms and Agreements therein specified and contained: And feeing it proceeds from the Efficacy of the fore-mentioned Contracts, that one Person becomes advanced from the common Level to the Title and Authority of a Sovereign, and that all others are, by their own Confent, put into the Condition of Subjects, there doth arise from thence, not only a mutual Relation betwixt him that governs, and them that are governed; but the first and highest Treason is that which is committed against the Constitution, and such Crimes against the Person and Dignity of the supreme Magistrate, are only made and declared to be to, by Reason of the Capacity he is put into by the Constitution, of preserving and defending the Society, and because it is needful, in order to the Peace, Welfare and Safety of the Community, that he should be covered from all Danger, and rendred facred in his Person, and inviolable in his regal Honour, while he answereth the Trust which the People, upon their affembling and uniting into a Body Politick, committed unto him, and does neither depart from the effential and fundamental Terms of the original Compact, nor from their necessary Provisions afterwards added, and enacted for preserving the Government in its primitive State and Frame. So that they neither are, nor can be Traitors, who endeavour to proferve and maintain the Conftitution; but they are the Traitors, who delign and purfue the Subversion of it; they are the Rebels that go about to overthrow the Government of their Country, whereas such as feek to sup formable to the Ties, and Obligations of Fealty. Nor is it meerly the first and highest Treason in itself, than Member of a pofitical Society is capable of committing, to go about to subvert the Constitution; but it is also the greatest Treason he can perpetrate against the Person, Crown and Dignity of the King; for such an Endeavour

11

1

31

Ender your both annuls and wasses off his Title to Superiority aver those above whom he was exalted from the common Level, by Virtue of the Constitution, and deprises him of all rightful and legal Claim of rectoral Authority over the Society, by definiting the alone Foundation upon which it was metted, and by which he became welted with it. By cancelling the Charter from which he derive thand holder his governing Power, the not only makes his Title to Sovereignty precarious, but sanders every Claim of that Kind, and every Challenge of governing the Community, to be an Invasion and Lifurnation.

4.

ed

-

4

1

is he

de

I TO

ty,

er,

eir

m, ms

oin

an fti-

the

OW

up on-

M-

the

aje

an

our

5. To all which I will only further add under this diead, that as all legal, Government is founded upon a mutual bupulation and Compact, to the first and most absolute Obligation arising from this Agreement, lies upon the Bringe towards the People; whereas the healty and Duty, which by the faid Contract and Covenant they bind and engage themselves unto towards thim, is in Order but recordary and conditional. Whenever any Person is chosen from the rest of the Society, and raised to Kingship upon a foregoing and previous Contract with the Community, he becomes upon the wery accepting it bound absolutely, and without Reserve, to govern them according southe Terms and Measures which they have agreed and flipulated, and to rule them by the Tenor of the laws, unto which they have circumscribed and confined him. -Whateasall, she Obedience and Fealty, which, they, who, by that Agreement, have render'd themselves Subjects, owe unto their ordained and created Sovereign, do derive their obligatory Power over them, and become due unto him, upon his governing them according to the concerted and kipulated Conditions, and this preferwing unto them their referred Privileges, Liberties and Rights.

6. As Great Britain has been the most provident and careful of all Countries, in referring no stielf, upon the first Inditation of. and Submission to Regal Government, all such Rights Privileges, and obligaties, as mere necessary to render it either renown'd, and honourable Abroad, or lafe, happy, and prosperous at home; fo it bath, with a Courage and Magnanimity speculiar unto it, mainstain dits Privileges and Liberties, thro' along Series of Ages, and seither re-assured and secur'd them by new and superadded Laws. when there were Endeavours to undermine and supplant them, or elfe hath y indicated them with a generous Courage, even to the Deposition and Abdication of treacherous, infurping, and tyrannical Princes, when more gentle, mild, and Senatorian Methods were found weak, and inbffectual to cover and protect them to themselves, and to convey and transmit them to such as were to come after. The People of Britoin have the same Title to, and Security for the Enjoyment of their Liberties and Properties, that our Kings have to their Crowns, or for Defence of the Regal Digmity. For asthey can plead nothing for what they enjoy or claim as dings hun fundamental and politive Laws; for the Subjects In terest-

H

be fu

be an

21

Su

W eit

ac

rit

WC

the

Di

ed

Au

the

and fan

oui

fro

bot

and of c lep:

ver

wh

pub

amo

pec

eith

afte lim

reig

in c chai

wer

and

Kin

affig

by ;

s to

perty

terest in his Liberty and Property is convey'd unto him, by the fame Terms and Channels, and fenced about with the fame Hedges and Pales. Horn tells us in his Mirror, Chap. 1. That the Saxons baving put an End to the Hept Irchy, by Reason of the continual Wars that attended the Reigning of fo many Kings in fo narrow a Compass of Land, they chose themselves one King to maintain and defend their Persons and Goods in Peace, by Rules of Law, and made bim fivear, that he should be obedient to fuffer Right as well as his People should be. For according to Bracton, Lib. 3. C. 9. The whole Power of the King of England, is to do Good, and not to do Hurt; nor can he do any Thing as a King, but what he can legally do. And as we know no King, but a King by Law; fo we are affured by Fortescue, Lib. I. c. 8. and l. 3. c.9. That he governs not his People by a Regal and an Absolute Power, but by a Politick, i.e. by a Limited Legal Power. Hence our Princes were, and are bound to fwear at their Coronation, That they would govern according to Law, and prefer ve unto them all their Customs and Franchises, (Stat. of Provis. 25 Ed. III.) Nor can we have a clearer Evidence of the legal Extent of the King's Authority, and of the Dimension of the Obedience which the Subject is bound unto, than that which we have in the Oath of Fealty formerly taken by the Subject; namely, That he should be obedient to all the King's Laws, and to every Precept and Process proceeding from the same, (Wilkins's Treat. Coron &c. Court-Leet, &c. p. 140.) Nor is that unworthy our Observation, which Hen. I. writ to the Pope, when attack'd by him about the Matter of Investitures, viz. That he could not diminish the Rights either of the Crown or of the Kingdom, and that if he should be so abject and mean as to attempt it, the Barons and People of England represented in Parliament, would not allow or permit it. 'Tis upon this Account affirm'd of an English King, That he can do no Wrong, because he can do nothing but what the Law impowers him. For the hath all Things subjected to his Authority, while he acts according to Law, yet there is nothing left to his arbitrary Will. The feveral Charters, especially that filed The Great Chart, in and by which our Right stands secured, sworn and entail'd unto us, and to our Posterity, were not the Grants and Concessions of our Princes, but Recognitions of what we have referv'd unto ourselves in the original Institution of our Government, and of what had always appertain'd unto us by common Law and immemorial Customs. And the these Privileges and Liberties came to be more distinctly and fignally ratify'd in the Great Charter, than they had been before; yet they had not only been acknowledg'd and transmitted down in the Laws of Edward the Confessor, as the Birth-Right of every Englishman; which also, William, the first Norman King, ratified as such; but they had long before been collected into a Body by King Edgar the Saxon, and were only revised, repeated and confirm'd by the Confessor. But amongst all the Rights and Privileges appertaining unto us, that of having a Share in the Legislation, and being to be govern'd by fuch Laws as we ourselves shall chuse, is the most fundamental and effential, as well as the most advantageous and beneficial: For thereby we are enabled to make fuch fuccessive and continual Provisions, as to the Preservation of the Society, and the promoting either the temporal or eternal Welfare of the Subject, shall be found needful or expedient. And as by our being possessed of so great a Portion of the Legislative Power, and by our having a Right by feveral positive Laws to annual Parliaments. we can both relieve ourselves from and against every thing that either threateneth, endangereth, or oppresseth us, and furnish, and accommodate the whole Community with all the legal Succours: and Means that are necessary for Peace, Preservation and Prosperity; fo herein lies our fignal Advantage and Felicity, that what we become interested in by a positive and Statute Law, it doth thereby and from thence, become a Part of our Right and Property, and not to be wrested again from us but by our own Consent. For as Bracton faith, Lib. 1. C. 2. (tho' it be also one of the first Dictates of Reason and common Sense) Laws can neither be altered nor vacated, fave by the Confent and Concurrence of the fame Authority by which they were made and enacted. 'T is true that the executive Part of the Government is, both by our Common and Statute Laws, convey'd unto, and vested in the King, but at the fame time there is sufficient Provision made, both in the Terms of our Constitution, and in our Parliamentary Acts, to prevent this from being hurtful unto us, unless our Sovereigns become guilty: both of the highest Treachery, and withal make an Invasion upon, and endeavour the Subversion of the whole Government. A Right of overfeeing the Execution of the Laws, being a Prerogative inseparable from the Office of the supreme Magistrate, because the very Ends to which he is cloathed with rectoral Authority, and for which he is designed and established, are the Conservation of the publick Peace, and the Administration of Justice towards and among the Members of the Body Politick. All that could be expected from the Wisdom of our Ancesto:s, or practicable by them, either upon the first Institution of civil Government, or upon their after Improvements, and farther Regulations of it, was to direct, limit, and restrain his executive Power committed unto the Sovereign, and to make him and his subordinate Ministers accountable, in case they should deny, delay, or pervert Justice, or be found chargeable with Male-Administration of the Laws. Now, never were a People more provident as to all these, than our Predecessors and Ancestors have been. For as they have left nothing to the King's private Discretion, much less to his arbitrary Will, but have allign'd him the Laws as the Rules and Measures he is to govern by; so they not only delegated it unto him, as a Trust which he s to swear faithfully to perform, but they always reserved a Liperty, Right and Power unto themselves, of inspecting his Adminif. tration,

3

n

e

,

75

W

z,

-

ıg

åt

d,

he

at ur

by vi-

y'd

nad

WS

n;

but gar

the

ing

nto

traction, making with responsible for it, and of abdicating him from the Sovereignty upon universa and egregious Failures in the Trust that had been credited and configured unto him. Of this we have implipantable Evidence in the Articles advanc's in Parliament against R. II. when he was deposed from the Throne, and had the Scepter taken out of his Hand. Year, to prevent all Dunger which might beld the Subject through the King's being trufted with the executive Power of the Government, he is not by our Conflict tion and Laws allowed to do any thing in his own Person; nay, riot to much as to draw and feel the Commission of those that are toact in his Name, and under him. And as nothing is accounted in our Government a Commission, but what the Law authorizes and warrants; to he is hable to be proceeded against as the highest Criminal, that prefumeth to act in the Virtue of any other. An illegal Cottimilion is to fat from conveying a Power unto any Man to act, that it is a greater Orime to do any thing upon the imaginary Authority of it, than it would be to commit the fame Fact, without aff Colour and Pretence of Power and Warrant Seeing the Injury of the one Case doth not affect and terminate in him that receives it; whereas in the other it affects both the King, the Government, and the whole Body of the People. And as if it were not enough to fecure us from an ill Use of the executive Power lodged in the King, that all the Commissions issuable from him are to be legal, or otherwise to be accounted null; even they who hand warranted and impowered to act by legal Commissions are not only to be fworn to execute them legally, but are obnoxious to be punished for every thing they do apon them that deviates from the Meafores of the Law. And as 'tis the Duty, and hath been the Practice of those Princes who have been faithful to the Trust reposed in them, regardful of their own Hohour, and just to the Kingdom, to purish their Officers and Ministers for Malverlation, and for departing in their Administration from the Rules of our Common and Statute Laws; witness King Alfred, who caused forty four Justices to be hanged in one Year, for illegal, falle and corrupt Judgments: So it belongeth to our Parliaments, as being one of the great Ends, as well as Reafons for which they ought to be frequently called and affembled to enquire into, and to punish the Orimes of Judges, and all others employed by, and under the King, in the executive Part of the Government. From hence it is, that as the House of Commons, among other Capacities in which they lit and act, are by the Conffirution to be the great inquest of the Kingdoth, to search into all the Oppressions and Injustices of the King's Mishisters; so the House of Lords, among their several other Rights and Privileges, stand cloathed with the Power and Authority of the High Court of Judicature of the Nation, who are to punish those who have misbehaved themselves in all Courts, as well as those whom inferior Courts have either connived any or have been so wicked

K

i

2

0

th

D

th iu M arc

34

the

So

aga

ung

1 10

fit t

Go

740 they

. 18.

tual

vern

9.

they

iy, th

by th

politie

10

as unrighteously to justify. Of this all Ages afford us Precedents, and nothing but the Neglect of this, in not making so frequent and fignal Examples of Parliamentary Justice, among the Ministerial Dispensers of our Laws, and the Officers of our late Kings, as our Ancestors used to do, hath been the Encouragement and Cause of so many Usurpations and Invasions of the Laws, Immunities, Rights and Privileges of the Nation.

đ

n

(d

10

An

dis

118 al

93

HE

tis

VE.

VII

nd

rare#

rite

10

الولا

ed,

HH

the

PASY

on-

HI

the

ges,

outt

ave

inked.

25

7. There being no natural or divine Law for any Form of Government, or that one Person rather than another should have the fovereign Administration of Affairs, or have Power over many thousand different Families, who are by Nature all equal, being of the same Rank, promiscuously born to the same Advantages of Nature, and to the Use of the same common Faculties; therefore Mankind is at Liberty to chuse what Form of Government they like best. Can any Man suppose that God was not as much concern'd for Italy, when it had but one Prince, as now, when it has so many? and the like with Germany, and also with Switzerland, which was once one Commonwealth, under the Dukes and Marquisses of Austria, and now divided into thirteen Cantons, or Commonwealths, under popular Magistrates of their own? England was first a Monarchy under the Britons, and then a Province under the Romans, and after that divided into feven Kingdoms at once, under the Saxons, and after them of the Danes, and then the Normans, and now a Monarchy again under the English, and all this by God's Providence, or Permission, who fuffered his own peculiar People, the Jews, to be under divers Manners of Governments, at divers Times; at first under Patriarchs, Abraham, Isaac and Facob; then under Captains, Moses, Josbua, &c. then under Judges, Othoniel, Ehud and Gideon; then under High Priests, Eli and Samuel; then under Kings, Soul, David, and the rest; then under Captains and High-Priests again, as Zerobabel, Judas Maccabeus, and his Brethren, until the Government was lastly taken from them, and they brought under the Power of the Romans. And that God does approve of. or permit fuch Magistrate or Magistrates, the Community thinks fit to appoint, is plain by the Testimony of holy Scripture; when God faid to Solomon, By me Kings rule, and Nobles, even of the Judges of the Earth, Prov. viii. 16. that is, by his Permission they govern, tho' chosen by the People.

8. All politick Societies began from a voluntary Union and mutual Agreement of Men; freely acting in the Choice of the Governors, and Forms of Government.

9. The Safety of the People is the supreme Law, and what they by common Consent have enacted only for the publick Safe-ty, they may without any Obstacle, alter, when Things require it, by the like common Consent.

10. The rightful Power of making Laws to command wholes politick Societies of Men, belongeth to properly unto the fame. entire Societies, that for any Prince, or Potentate, of what kind foever upon Earth, to exercise the same of himself, and not by express Commission immediately and personally received from God, or else by Authority derived at first by their Consent, upon whose Persons they impose Laws, it is no better than meer Tyranny. Laws they are not, therefore, which publick Approbation hath not made so. Hooker's Eccl. Pol. 1. 1. S. 10.

use

11. Whofoever (says Aristotle) is governed by a Man without a Law, is governed by a Man and by a Beaft.

12. Aristotle faith, That the whole Kingdom, City or Family, is more excellent, and to be preferred before any Part or Member thereof.

13. By the Law of Nature, Salus Populi, the Welfare of the People is both the supreme and first Law in Government, and the Scope and End of all other Laws and of Government itself, because the Sasety of the Body Politick is ever to be preferr'd before any one Person whatsoever.

14. No human Law is binding which is contrary to Scripture, or the general Laws of Nature.

15. Religion doth not overthrow Nature, whose chiefest Principle is to preferve herfelf.

16. As Magistrates were defigned for the publick Good, so the Obligation to them must be understood so, as to be still in Subordination to the main End; for the Reason of all Law and Government is the publick Good.

17. A just Governor, for the Benefit of the People, is more careful for the publick Good and Welfare, than of his own private Advantage.

18. The Power that is lodged in the Crown is only a Trust, and nothing more; for no Prince has any other Right to the Throne, than what the Laws of the Land, or Voice of the People gives him; for he cannot have a Right by Nature; he has no more Power or Authority from God, before he is a Magistrate, than another Man; all Men are ordained of God, and have Power or Strength from him either to do Good or Evil, and God Almighty permits them to do either. The Prince has his Authority from the People, or the Law, which chuses or appoints him to be supreme, of which he is only Executor, during the Intervals of Parliament. The Law is the Rule and Power of his Government, (and the Measure of the People's Submission and Obedience) beyond which he hath no just or rightful Power in his politick Capacity.

The supreme Authority of a Nation belongs to those who have the legislative Authority reserved to them, and not only to those who have the executive, which is plainly a Trust when it is separated from the legislative Power; and all Trusts, by their Nature, import that those to whom they are given, are accountable, the no fuch Condition is specified.

20. All that know any thing of Britain, know that the Government of it is a mixed limited Monarchy, where the supreme Power is divided between the King and People (i. e. the Lords and Commons) since he can neither raise Money, nor make or annul Laws without them, and those Laws are a Rule to both, a common Measure to him of his Power, and to them of their Obedience; the Government is call'd a Monarchy, because that Kind is predominant in the Constitution, the King having his Share in the supreme Power, and the chief executive Part or Administration is fingly in him.

(e

1.

ot

0

15 er

he

he

fe

19 es

n-

he

b-

0.

ore ri-

ft,

he

ple

no te,

ve

od

unis

n-

his

Q-

his

ho

to it is

Va-

ble,

20,

21. There must be in every Government a Power to preserve itself, not only against Force from without, but against Violence, and every Thing else that is destructive from within: As a Man preserves his Person from Diseases, as well as defends it against He cannot renounce this Power, because Self-Preservation is, and will always be a Duty, neither can a People united in Society or Government, renounce the Power of maintaining that Society or Government, the Instrument of their Safety and Prefervation; for the Condition of all Subjects would be alike, whether under absolute or limited Government, if it were not lawful to maintain and preferve those Limitations, fince Will and Pleasure, and not Law, would be alike in both the Measure of Obedience; for to have Liberties and Privileges, unless they may be defended, and to have none at all, is the fame thing as to be govern'd by meer Will and Pleasure, or by Laws subject to that Will and Pleafure.

King and People, and must be interpreted according to the Nature of the Government, so as to prove Fences for the Constitution, and not to serve for Handles to overthrow it; as the Coronation Oath, and Oath of Allegiance are, in effect, but swearing to the Constitution, in one to govern, and in the other to be governed, according to it. But if a Coronation Oath be a Tie upon a King only to God, and the Oath of Allegiance be extended to an absolute Subjection, then both King and People swear against the Constitution, instead of swearing to maintain it as they ought to do.

23. The Laws are the Nerves and Sinews of Societies; and as the Magistrate is above the People in his legal Capacity, so is the Law above the Magistrate, or else there could be no Safety to the Constitution.

24. He who makes himself above all Law, is no Member of a Commonwealth, but a meer Tyrant whenever he pleafes.

25. He who is for destroying the Being of another, hath quitted (or has not) the Reason which God hath given to be the Rule (betwixt Man and Man) of Justice and Equity, and hath put himself into the State of War with the other, and is as noxious as any sayage Beast that seeks his Destruction.

C 2

26. No Man in civil Society can be exempted from the Laws of it: For if there be no Appeal on Earth, for Redress or Security against the greatest Mischief the Prince may do, or cause to be done by others, then every Man in that Society is in a State of Nature, with respect to him, or those others.

27. The Principles of natural Religion give those who are in Authority no Power at all, but only secures them in the Possession of that which is theirs by the Laws of the Country.

28. Absolute Monarchy is inconsistent with civil Society; and therefore can be no Form of civil Government, which is to remedy the Inconveniences of the State of Nature.

29. No Man or Society of Men have Power to deliver up their Preservation, or the Means of it, to the absolute Will of any Man, and they will have always a Right to preserve what they have not Power to part with.

tl

tu

2

Ы

fre

fei

no

far

O

na

of

of fev

call

of '

the

nei

OCC

and

Prit

all .

to be

the. Wh built dren

then

gatio Ifrae

lirec Man

nd

30. No Power can exempt Princes from the Obligation to the eternal Laws of God and Nature. In all Disputes between Power and Liberty, Power must always be proved, but Liberty proves itself; the one being founded upon positive Law, the other upon the Law of Nature.

31. If a Magistrate, notwithstanding all Laws made for the well governing a Community, will act destructive to that Community, they are discharged, either from active or passive Obedience, and indispensably obliged, by the Law of Nature, to Resistance.

Man may be a God to a Man. Therefore Antiquity hath enrolled Hercules among the Number of the Gods, because he punish'd Businis, Diemedes, and other Tyrants, the Pests of Mankind and Monsters of the World. The Raman Empire, as long as it stood free, was kiled Patrocinium orbis Terra, &c. by Cicero, because the Senate was the Haven and Resuge of Kings, and of oppressed Kingdoms and Nations.

33. The same Reason that obliges People to submit to Governors and Magistrates, when they govern according to the Laws and Constitution of the Country, and act for the Good of the Society, does as much oblige the People to oppose them, if they design their Ruin and Destruction: It cannot be supposed that God, who has obliged Mankind to preserve their Lives, and consequently to use the Means that are necessary for that End, should require People to suffer themselves to be destroyed, or made Slaves, to gratify the Lust or Barbarity of any single Person, or a few who are by Nature their Equals, and only above them by being in an Office, which the People erected for their own Convenience.

34. When the Christian Religion is become a Part of the Subjects Property, by the Laws and Constitution of the Country, then then it is to be confidered as one of their principal Rights; and fo may be defended as well as any other civil Right.

35. That Cause is just which defends the Laws; which protects the common Good; which preserves the State: And that Cause is unjust which violates the Laws; defends the Breakers of the Laws; protects the Subverters of the Constitution. That is just which does destroy tyrannical Government: That unjust which would abolish just Government.

36. What can be more absurd than to say, That there is an absolute Subjection due to a Prince, to whom the Laws of God, Nature, and the Country, have not given Authority? As such Men were as so many Herds of Cattle, or Beasts of Burden, made for the Prince's Ufe.

37. The Reign of a good King refembles that of Heaven, over which there is but one God; for he is no less beloved of the Virtuous, than feared of the Bad: And if human Frailty could admit a Succession of good Kings, their Government would be preferable to all others.

38. 'Tis not the Title of a King, but the Power (derived from the Laws) wherewith he is invested, which makes the Difference betwixt him and other Men. His Person is sacred, and not to be resisted, he being above every Member contained in the same Society, and therefore cannot be resisted or deprived of his Office, without the greatest Sin of Robbery and Injustice imaginable, whilst he continues the King, and becomes not the Enemy of his Kingdom.

39. The Government which God ordained over the Children of Ifrael, confisted of three Parts, besides the Magistrates of the several Tribes and Cities. They had a chief Magistrate, who was called Judge or Captain, as Joshua, Gideon, and others; a Council of 70 chosen Men, and the general Assemblies of the People, and these Judges or Captains had not the Name or Power of Kings. neither was their Power transmitted to their Children, but made occasionally as Need required. Thus were Ebud, Gideon, Jepthab, and others fet up: Whosever will give Battle (fay the People and Princes of Gilead) to the Children of Ammon, shall be Head over all the Inhabitants of Gilead, Judg. x. 18. And knowing Jepthan to be a mighty Man of Valour, though he was the Son of a Harlot, the People made him Head and Captain over them, Judg. xi 1, 11. When the Tribes of Reuben, Gad, and half that of Manaffeb had built an Altar by Jordan, the whole Congregation of the Chiltren of Ifrael gathered together at Shileh to go up to War against them, and fent Phineas the Priest and ten Princes of the Congregation, of each chief House a Prince throughout all the Tribes of frael, who were Heads of Thousands, and this Message was not firected to one Man, but to all the Children of Reuhen, Gad, and Manasseh. And the Answer was sent by them all, and Phineas, nd the ten Princes, made their Report to the People of Ifrael, and all was quiet; Joh. xxii. And the like Assembly Johna called to Sechem, composed of all the People, or Tribes, of Ijrael, and he called for their Elders, their Heads of Families, their Judges, and other Officers, and Johna spake unto all the People, and they agreeing to what he proposed, he made a Covenant and Law with them before the Lord, which was written in the Book of the Law, Joh. xxiv.

1

th

W

th

W

de

11 th

L

di

01 0 pl

up K

W

th

W

m

re

M

T

in

K

no

'n

U

th

Sic

ye

X.

K

Ei

ha

m

70 jed

hi

ha

D

20

ON

40. After Joshua's Death the Proceedings of every Tribe were grounded upon Counsels, taken at such Assemblies among themselves, for their ownConcernments, as appears by the Actions of Judab and Simeon, &c. against the Canagnites.

41. When the Sons of Samuel were Judges over Ifrael, they took Bribes, and perverted Judgment, therefore the Elders of Ifrael defired Samuel to make them a King; and though the Elders are only mentioned to have asked a King of Samuel, they feem to have been deputed from the whole Congregation, for God faid unto Samuel, Hearken to the Voice of the People in all that they fay unto thee, I Sam. viii. 4, 7. The Jews in their creating of Judges, Kings, or other Magistrates, had no Regard to Paternity, or to any who by Extraction could in the least pretend to the Right of Fathers: God did never direct them to do it, nor reprove them for neglecting it; if they would chuse a King, he commanded them to chule one of their Brethren, (not one who called himself Father) and to chuse him by Lot, and caused the Lot to fall upon Saul, a young Man (who was the Keeper of his Father's Asses) of the youngest Tribe: David and the other Kings of Ifrael and Judah, had no more to tay for themselves in that Point than Saul: All the Kings of that Nation before and after the Captivity, ordinarily and extraordinarily fet up, justly or unjustly, were raised without any Regard to any Prerogative they could claim or arrogate to themselves on that Account. All that they had therefore was from the People that elevated them. 'T was impossible for them to confer any thing upon those from whom they received all they had, or for the People to give Power to Kings, if they had it not in themselves; which Power universally residing in every one, is that which we call Liberty. When God gave Liberty to his People to make a King, he did neither constitute or elect any 'till they defired it not commanded them to do it themselves, but left it to their own free Will, whether they would have a King or no King; not were they appointed to take him out of any one Line: Every Ifraelite might be chosen: None but Strangers were excluded; and the People were left to the Liberty of chufing and instituting any one of their Brethren, who was commanded not to mulu ply to himself Horses, nor Wives, nor greatly to multiply himself Silver and Gold; and this Law he was to keep in a Book that his Heart might not be lifted up above his Brethren, Dem xvii. But the whole History of the Jews, shews the Pride, Mag nificence nificence, Pomp and Glory usurped by their Kings, was utterly contrary to the Will of God. They did lift up their Hearts above their Brethren, which was forbidden by the Law of God.

r

d

k

C

-

of

y

of 1-cy

10 all

re-

to re-

do

e a not

and

the

and for ion

fet

any that that hing

the

ves;

1 We

kea

ed it,

OWD

; non

very

ded;

uting

ulu

olyto

ook

Deut

Mag

ence

And Josephus, paraphrasing upon that Place, says, They shall do nothing without the Advice of the Sanhedrim, or is they do, they shall oppose them, Jos. Ant. Jud. This agrees with the Confession of Zedekiah, to the Princes, (which was the Sanhedrim) The King can do nothing without you, Jer. xxxviii. which seems to have been in pursuance of the Law of that Kingdom, which was written in a Book, and laid up before the Lord; they were not to govern by their own Will, but according to that Law from which they might not recede. This was the Law of God, not to be abrogated by Man; a Law of Liberty; directly opposite to the Necessity of submitting to the Will of any one Man.

43. I Sam. viii. 9. 22. God bids Samuel hearken to the Voice of the People, and make them a King; and Samuel told the People the Manner of the Kingdom, and wrote it in a Book, and laid it up before the Lord, I Sam. x. 25. 'Tis plain, the Manner of the Kingdom fignifies the Constitution of the Government, by which was meant the Conditions on which Saul was to be King, and they his Subjects; for though God had given him the Crown, it was to rule the People according to Justice and Laws; and this is meant in frequent Expressions, by going in and out before them; referring to Justice being executed in the Gates, and Peace and War; the King was to lead them in one, and direct in the other. This Manner of the Kingdom was told to all the People; that imply'd, the Consent of the People was required to make him King; without which, though Samuel had anointed him, he was not own'd by the Israelites, but went about his private Affaire. 'till after the Victory over the Ammonites. And this Compact between Saul and the People, being wrote in a Book and laid up before the Lord, was a very good Equivalent to an Oath recorded on both Sides, as an Oath of Allegiance, and his Qath of Government; yet they despised him, and said, How shall this Man save us? ISam. 2. 27. They faw no Merit in the Man they expected; the King that they would have had, would have been a Man of some Figure, whose Conduct had been tried, and Valour and Bravery. had made famous among the Tribes; but when they faw a Youth, mean and despicable in his Original, of the youngest Tribe of Ifruel, a Benjamite, they were disappointed, they went away dejected, and refused him, notwithstanding Samuel had anointed him, and God had fingled him out by Lot. It feem'd as if God had owned there was some Appearance of Reason in the People's Diflike of their King, and therefore he was not pleafed to express any Anger at the Contempt of their rejecting Saul, as it were owning that a King ought to have personal Merit to recommend him ; him; and therefore by his Providence he works upon the People's Judgment, and by a Miracle gives Saul the Merit which obtain'd the People's good Liking; for Nahash the Ammonite, came and encamped against Jabesh Gilead, and the Elders thereof sent Mesfengers to Gibeah, who told the Tydings in the Ears of the People; and they lift up their Voices and wept; and Saul faid, what aileth the People that they weep; and they told him the Tydings of the Men of Jabesh. And the Spirit of God came upon Saul, when he heard those Tydings, and his Anger was kindled greatly, and the Fear of the Lord fell on the People, and they came out with one Confent, and flew the Ammonites. After the Battle was over, Samuel faid to the People, Come, and let us go to Gilgal, and renew the Kingdom there. And all the People went to Gilgal, and there they made Saul King before the Lord; that is, they accepted of him, I Sam. xi. 1, 5, 6, 7, 14, 15. Chap. xii. 13. Now therefore behold the King whom ye bave chosen, and whom ye have desired; and behold the Lord hath set a King over you.

44. All that do affert Unconditional Obedience, do affert, that Kings derive their Authority from God alone: I deny that there ever was any King in the World that derived his Authority from God alone. Saul, the first King of Israel, had never reign'd, but the People defired a King, even against the Will of God; and though he was proclaimed King at Mizpab, yet after that, he led a private Life, and looked after his Father's Cattle, 'till he was created fo the second Time by the People at Gilgal: And David, though he had been anointed by the Command of God, was anointed the second Time in Hebron, by the Tribe of Judah, and after that by all the People of Israel, who after that made a mutual Covenant betwixt him and them, 2 Sam. v. 1. Ch. xi. 1. Now a Covenant lays an Obligation upon Kings, and restrains them within Bounds, according to that Covenant and Agreement. Jeboida, the Priest, made Joash King in his stead, after the People had entered into Covenant one with another, 2 Kings xi. I confess that these Kings, and all that reign'd of David's Posterity, were appointed to the Kingdom both by God and the People; but all other Kings, of what Country foever, I affirm, that they are made by the People only; nor can it be made appear, that Kings are appointed by God any otherwise, than as all other Things, great or small, are appointed by him, because Nothing comes to pass without his Permission or Providence. The Throne of David was, in a peculiar Manner, called The Throne of the Lord, it being a Type of our Saviour's everlasting Throne in the Kingdom of Heaven; and from which Line our Saviour proceeded. But the Thrones of other Princes are no otherwise God's, than all other Things in the World are his, Chron. xxix. 11, 12, Thine, O Lord, is the Greatness, &c. for all that is in Heaven, and in the Earth is thine. Both Riches and Honour come: of thee, and thou reignest over all.

b

V

P

25

to

Ri

tio

ou

Ar

ago

thr

the me,

firn ow

Pec

Pes

to b

ten

brou

flair 2 Se

ly di

reigr

did

King

Peop

that rity,

and

Peop

God

W29 1

Co

laim

he P ogati mly

u cs rispi .

e

e

0

e

.

2

t

t

e

n ı,

;

t,

le.

ıd

d,

b, at

h.

be od!

d,

T,

of

bc

1

de:

23

ie.

C.

he ng

זט

07

on.

is me :

15.

When Solomon was dead, the People affembled themselves at Sichem to make Rehoboam, the Son of Solomon, King; thither he went, as one stood for the Place; the People propose Conditions, upon which they were willing, to admit him to the Government; he defires three Days to advise; he consults the old Men, they perfuade him to comply with the People; then he adviles with the young Men, who perfuade him to threaten the People with Whips and Scorpions; and he answered the People as they advised him. When all Ifrael faw that he hearken'd not to them, then they openly professed against him, and declared the Right of the People, and their own Liberty, faying, What Portion have we in David? To thy Tents, O Ifrael! Now look to thy own House, David. When the King sent Adoram to them, they stoned him with Stones; and when Rehoboam had prepared a great Army to reduce the Ifraelites, he was forbidden by the Prophet, I Kings, xii. 24. Thus faith the Lord, ye shall not go up, nor fight against your Brethren. He calls them not Rebels, but their Brethren, Deut. xvii. 2.4. When thou art come into the Land, which, the Lord thy God giveth thee, and shalt say, I will set a King over me, like as all the Nations about me, &c. These Words confirm to us, that the Right of chusing, yea, of changing, their own Government is by the Grant of God himself in the People.

46. This was a Gift bestowed by God upon his Children and People. Nay, David himself was so far from taking upon him to be King, 'till the Tribe of Judah had chosen him, that he often acknowledged Saul to be his Lord. When Bannan and Recab brought the Head of Ishbosheth to him, he commanded them to be flain; because they had killed a righteous Man in his own House, 2 Sam. iv. which he could not have faid, if Isbosbeth had unjustly detained from him the ten Tribes, and that he had a Right to reign over them before they had chosen him. The Word of God did not make him King, but only foretold that he should be King, and by fuch Ways as he pleased prepared the Hearts of the People to fet him up; and 'till the Time designed by God for that Work was accomplished, he pretended to no other Authority, than what the Six Hundred Men, who first followed him, and afterwards the Tribe of Judah, and at last all the rest of the reople; conferred upon him. If David, though defigned by God to be King, and anointed by the Hand of the Prophet, was not King 'till the People had chosen him, and he had made Covenant with them, it will be hard to find a Man who can laim a Right, which is not originally from the People. And if he People of Ifrael could erect and pull down, inftitute and abogate, or transfer to other Persons, or Families, Kingdoms more imly established than any we know, or have heard of; the same ight cannot be denied to any other Nations. And no other Rean can be given for the infinite Variety of Constitutions that have been, and are in the World, than that the People who made them would have them so; which could not have been, if God and Nature had appointed one general Rule for all Nations. the Rights and Liberties of a Nation may be utterly subverted and abolished, if the Power of the whole People, or Nation may not be employ'd to affert them, or punish the Violation of theme and as it is the fundamental Right of every Nation to be governed by fuch Laws, in fuch Manner, and by fuch Persons as they think most conducing to their own Good, they cannot be accountable to any but themselves for what they do in that most important Affair. And as the Safety of all Nations confifts in rightly placing and measuring of Power, such have been found always to prosper, who have given it to those from whom Usurpations were least to be feared; who have been least subject to be a wed, cheated, or corrupted; and who having the greatest Interest in the Nation, were most concerned to preserve its Power, Liberty and Welfare. This is the greatest Trust can be reposed in Men; this Power was, by the Spartans, given to the Ephori, and the Senate of twenty-eight; in Venice, to that which they call Concilio de Pragadi; in Germany. Spain, France, Sweedland, Denmark, Poland, Hungary, Bohemia, Scotland. England, and generally all the Nations that have lived under the Gothick Polity, it has been in their general Assemblies; under the Names of Diets, Cortez, Parliaments, Senates, and the like. But in what Hands foever it is, the Power of making, abrogating, changing, correcting and interpreting Laws, has been the fame, Kings have been rejected or deposed; the Succession of the Crown settled, regulated, or chang'd: And I defy any Man to shew me one King amongst all the Nations aforementioned, that has any Right to the Crown he wears, unless such Acts were good.

been,

tl

th

go

60 ti

01

Te

T

de

po

fo

ar

he

C

fe

P

th

u

fo

th

th

be

th

In

fu

th

L

T

N

CI

S

of

B

th

47. Cicero de Offic. 1. 2. is thus translated by Sir Roger PEf. trange, p. 101, 102. Herodotus, tells us, That the Medians chose their Kings originally for the Probity of their Manners, and in hopes of enjoying the Benefits of common Justice; which I am perfuaded was the End and Practifelikewise of our Predecessors. For when in old Time, the Weaker were oppressed by the Stronger, the People presently betook themselves to one more excellent than the rest for their Protector; and it was his Part to relieve the Diftreffed, and to make such Provisions, that common Right might be do: e indifferently betwixt all Parties. And in making of their Laws they had the same Prospect, as in the Choice of their Kings. The Thing propounded, was an equal and a common Right, without being so qualified. If under the Administration of some one Man that was just and good, they attained that End, they were well contented there to rest; but in case of failing, there were Laws invented, which, to all under them, and at all times should still pronounce one and the same Sentence. This is clear, that in all Elections the People have still had a Care to pitch upon him for their Governor that was most reverenced for his Justice, always provided that he were a Man of Prudence too. And what is it that a Nation would not believe itself able to compass, under so auspicious a Conduct.

(:::334

0

e ê

d

8 le

9-

11 n

1-

2-d:

1-

8, je

es

ed

n

0-est

d,

1.C

WS

he

ut

an ell

WS

till

all

or

ir

48. Cafar and Tacitus describe the ancient Britans to have been a fierce People; zealous for Liberty; a free People; not like the Gauls, governed by Laws made by the great Men, but by the People. In Cafar's Time they chose Cassivellannus, and afterwards Carastacus, Arviragus, Galgacus, and others to command them in their Wars, but they retained the Government in themselves, That no Force might be put upon them, they met armed in their general Assemblies, and though the smaller Matterswere left to the Determination of the chief Men, chosen by themselves for that Purpose, they reserved the most important to themselves. When the Romans had brought them low, they fet up certain Kings to govern such who were in their Territories; but those who defended themselves by the natural Strength of their Situation, or retired into the North, or the Islands, were still governed by their own Customs, and were never acquainted with domestick or foreign Slavery, Inter instrumenta Servitutis reges habuere, C. Tacit. The Saxons or Angli, were no less Lovers of Liberty, and understood the Ways of defending it. They were certainly the most powerful and valiant People of Germany. Cafar and Tacitus inform us, that the ancient Britons and Saxons had no Monarchs; and that our Ancestors had their Councils and Magistrates, as well here, as in Germany; that as foon as the Saxons came into this Country, they had their Micklegemots, which were general Asfemblies of the Noble and Free-Men, who had in themselves the Power of the Nation; fometimes they met by their Delegates in the Wittenagemots; in some Ages they were divided, in others united; sometimes under Captains, in other times under Kings; fometimes meeting perforally in the Micklegemots, sometimes by their Delegates in the Wittenagemot, does evidently testify that they ordered all things according to their own Pleasure; which being the utmost Act of Liberty, it remained inviolable under all the aforegoing Changes, as appears by the Confession of Offa, Ina, Alfred, Canute, Edward, and other Kings. And, we may be fure, those of the Norman Race can have no more Power, fince they came in by the same Way, and swore to govern by the same Laws. These general Councils were called in the Time of Ina, The general Council of the Bishops, Noblemen, Counts, all the wife Men, Elders, and People of the whole Kingdom. Commune Concilium Episcoporum, Procerum, Comitum & omnium Sapientum, Senioram & Populorum totius Regni. Bed. Eccl. Hift. In the Time of Edward the Elder they were called The great Council of the Bisbops, Abbots, Noblemen and People. William of Malmebury calls them The general Senate and Affembly of the People: Senatum generalem & Populi Conventum. Sometimes they were (in thort) cal-D2 led The Clergy and People; but all express the same Power, neither received from, nor limited by Kings, who are always faid to be chosen, or made, and sometimes deposed by them. Reason of this is, that they who institute Magistracy, best know whether the End of the Institution be rightly pursued or not; and their Kings had no Power, but what was conferred upon them by the People. And all just Magistracies being the same in Essence, though differing in Form, the same Right must perpetually belong to those who put the sovereign Power into the Hands of one, a few, or many Men. Thus the Romans did, when they created Kings, Confuls, Military Tribunes, Dictators, or Decemviri: And it is ridiculous to fay, that those Officers gave Authority to the People to meet and chuse them; for they who are chosen are the Creatures of those who chuse, and are nothing more than others, 'till they are chosen. This is as certain in relation to Kings, as any other Magistrates. This Power of conferring the Sovereignty was likewise exercised in France by the People, who made Merovius King, passing by the two Grandchildren of Pharamond's Sons to Clodion, and excluded his Race, and gave the Crown to Pepin, who deposed Lewis le Debonair, and Charles le Gross, who made five Kings, that were either Bastards, or Strangers between him and Charles le Simple; who rejected his Race, and advanced Hugh Capet, who made Henry I. King before Robert his elder Brother, and continued the Crown in the Race of Henry for ten Generations, whilst the Descendants of Robert were only Dukes of Burgundy: The like hath been done in Caffile and Arragon, by frequently preferring the younger before the elder Brother; the Descendants of Females before those of the Male-Line in the same Degree; the more remote in Blood before the nearest; and sometimes Bastards before the legitimate Iffue: The same hath been done in England, before and fince the Conquest, as doth appear by many following Examples.

9

6

a

t ir

lo

tl

al

15

N

P

2

e

th

th

P

C

Li

10

P

VC

Th.

So

M

A

49. Monfieur Mezeray, a great Historian, gives this Account of the Manners of the ancient Germans. There were, if I mistake now, three Sorts of Government among the Germans. In some Places the People had the principal Authority, and yet they often elected a Prince, or a King; sometimes a General, whom we call Duke, from the Latin Word Dux. But the Power of these Chiefs descended entirely on the Community, or People, so that it was always a mix'd Democracy. In other Parts, as among the Gothones, the Kings reign'd with more Power, yet not to the Detriment of Liberty: Their Royalty was limited by Laws, and the Reason of Things. As for Liberty, no People were ever so jealous of it, or ever defended it so long, and so successfully, as the Germans. It may indeed be said, that Liberty, being driven out of the best Part of the World by the Roman Arms, took Resuge on the further Side of the Rhine, where she had for her Companions and Guards, Poverty. Innocence, Frugality and Modesty; and were in the Fastnesses of Woods and Marasses, lome-

S

.

-

ie

1-

e, r, e-

I.

in its

ne

e-ofe

od

ite

he nt

ike

ces

om

enx'd

ngs

for forid,

the ere ga-

Tes,

Sometimes on the defentive; Sometimes making tour agous Sallies; She compated five hundred Years together against Tyranny and all her Train; I mean Ambition, Luxury, Volupturufnes, Flattery, Conruption, and Divisions, the Instruments which that cruel Enemy of human Race employs to forge Manacles and Fetters. The aforefaid Monfieur, in the Beginning of King WILLIAM's Reign, discouring with a Person of Quality, about the Difference of the Government in France and England, he broke out in this Expresfion, O Fortunatus nimium, bona si sua norint Angligenas? We had once, faid he, in France the same Happiness, and the same Privileges which you have. Our Laws were made by Representatives of our own chufing: Our Money was not taken from us, but by our own Consent: Our Kings were subject to the Rules of Law and Rea-Jon: But now, alas! we are miserable, and all is lost. Think nothing, Sir, too dear to maintain these precious Advantages; and if ever there be Occasion, venture your Life, your Estate, and all you have, rather than submit to the Condition to which you fee us reduced. 50. The Election of Magistrates was the Original of Succession; for as the living more fafely, and with the freer Enjoyment of Property was the original Cause that People affociated themselves into a Nation or Kingdom; fo, for the better attaining that End, they did fet over themselves the best and wifest of their Brethren to be their Rulers and Governors; and this Administration was trusted in one or more Hands, and continued for their Lives, or for a longer or thorter time, as the Constituents thought fit. Where the Government was under a King, he usually held it for Life, and then upon his Decease, the People proceeded to a new Election, 'till at last it fell into the Hands of some very excellent Person, who having more than ordinarily deferved of his Country, the People, as well in Gratitude to him, as believing they could not make a better Choice, than in the Branches that would grow out of fo excellent a Stock, entail'd that Dignity upon his Posterity. And this is the just Rise of Succession; all others being unjust; for he that comes in by the Power of the Sword, may be deprived by the Power of the Sword; 'tis nothing but the Confent of the Govern'd can give a Right to Succession. The next in Succession to the Crown of England was formerly reckoned to have a very precations Title, any further than his good Dispositions and Capacities, to Iway the Sceptre, did recommend him to the Affections of the People, ('till the Time of William I. called the Conqueror) it being very common not only to break into the Succession, but even to let afide all that Family and Line, whenever it was known that the Publick might fuffer by their being at the Head of the Governa ment; witness the preferring Cassibellan before his elder Brother's Sons, Edgar, not next in Blood; Ethelwerd and Ethelwolf, a Monk, for want of a better, was advanced to the same Honour: Athelftan, though a Baftard, and without any Title, was elected by the Con one of the Nobility and People. Elarge, by the fame Authority, Authority, was elected and preferred before the Sons of Edmond his Predecessor; and Edward, Athelston and Harold, who were all illegitimate, were chosen; and Eldred against the Right of his two Nephews, Edway and Edwin, and Canute a Foreigner, and Hardikanute without Title; Harold, and Edward the Confessor was elected King with the Confent of the Clergy and People at London. Annuento Clero & Populo Londini in regem eligetur. Harold II. and William, called the Conqueror, whilst the next Heirs Edgar and Etheling were living. William, called the Conqueror. confessed in his last Will, made at Caen in Normandy, That he neither found, nor left the Kingdom as an Inheritance. Neminem Anglici regni constituo hæredem, non enim tantum decus hæreditario jure possedi, ibid. If he possessed no Right, but what was conferred upon him, no more was conferred than had been empoy'd by the ancient Kings, according to the approved Laws which he swore to obferve. Those Laws gave no Power to any 'till he was elected, and that, which, they then did give, was so limited, that the Nobility and People reserved to themselves the Disposition of the greatest Affairs, even to the Disposition and Expulsion of such as should not well perform the Duty of their Oaths and Office.

51. After the Conquest, An. 1087, Robert, the elder Brother, was put afide, and William Rufus, the Second Son of William the Conqueror, was elected; after whose Death Henry I. his younger Brother, though not next Heir, was chosen by the People, not fummoned by Writ; and this Henry, in his Charter, acknowledged that he ow'd his Crown to the Common Council of the Realm. After the Death of Henry I. Stephen was chosen King, against the supposed Right of Maud, the Daughter of Henry I. After his Death, Henry II. was admitted King, against the like Right of his Mother Maud. After the Death of Richard I, King John, (Earl of Morton) was elected, and Arthur, the next Heir, difinherited. After the Death of King John, Henry, his First-born, was elected against the Right of Arthur. Henry III. was chosen against the like Right of Eleanor, Prince Arthur's Sifter. At the Death of Henry III. the States of the Kingdom met and fettled the Government, by appointing Officers, and what elfe was necessary for the Realm: and Edward IV. was fet up by the People, during the Life of Henry VI. Whilst the Lady Elizabeth, the true Heir of the Crown was living Henry VII was declared King, without joining her in the Title, or fo much as making any Mention of her Right. So that 'till Henry III: there is scarce to be found any Precedent of Succession, and since his Reign the Succession hath been altered feveral Times, and the Crown shifted from one Family to another by Act of Parliament. These are sufficient Proofs and a front of the Power and Authority of the People.

52. Richard the Third being entreated by a Petition delivered in a Roll of Parchment in the Name of the Three Estates of Parliament to accept the Crown, at first modestly resused; but after-

15

In

A

er

of 07

m

/bi fr

C

th

to an

th ma

the

in alt

affi

ceel

by.

ena poi

to

Con

787

the

fello

wards he said, Sith we well perceive, that all the Realm is so set, whereof we be very sorry that they will not suffer, in any wise, King Edward's Line to govern them, whom no earthly Man can govern without their Wills; and well also we perceive, that no Man there is, to whom the Crown can by just Title appertain, as to ourself, as very right Heir lawfully begotten of our most dear Father Richard, late Duke of York, to which Title is now joined your Election the Nobles and Commons of this Realm, which we of all Title possible take for the most effectual, we be content. Speed. Fol. 908. Numb. 63. And then an Act of Parliament passed to establish King Richard the Third's lawful Election, Id. Fol. 911. and sequent. Cot. Records, fol. 709, to 714.

•

N

0 d zt.

)-

ı,

ty

ft

Id

er,

he

zer

ot

ged

m.

the

his

his

Earl

ted.

ted!

the

h of ern-

for ring

Heir

hout

n of any hath

Fa-

roofs

vered

Parafterwards

53. By a Clause in King Henry's Charter, it is said, If the King invades those Rights, (meaning the Rights of the People) it is lawful for the Kingdom to rife against him, and to do him what Injury they can, as though they ow'd him no Allegiance. Act of Parliament of the 12th of Richard the Second, it was enacted, That if the King, thro' a foolish Obstinacy, and Contempt of his People, or perverse froward Will, or by any other irregular Way, Shall alienate himself from his People, and will not be govern'd and regulated by the Rights of the Kingdom, and laudable Ordinances made by the Council of the Lords and great Men of the Realm, but shall headily, in his mad Councils, exercise his own arbitrary Will, from thenceforth it is lawful for them, with the common Affent and Confent of the People of the Realm, to abrogate or depose him from the Throne, and set up in his Stead somebody of Kin, or near of Kin to the King of the Royal Stock; which gives a Latitude for chuling any deferving Person of the Royal Stock.

54. By the Acls of Parliament of the 25th and 28th of Henry the VIIIth, it is declared, That if such Heirs as are there appointed, without Regard to the Scotch Family, should fail, and no Provision made in the King's Life-time who should rule and govern this Realm, then the Realm shall be destitute of a lawful Governor

55. The Act of the 13th of Elizabeth, C.1. makes it Treason in any After-Time to deny the Power of Parliament to limit or alter the Succession, and add a Penalty upon them who should affirm, That any but the Issue of the Queen's Body had Right to succeed after ber.

56. King Alfred acknowledged in his Will, joined to his Life by Monevenses, that he owed his Crown to the Bounty of his Princes, and of the Elders of his People.

57. The Power which the People of England had in the Disposal of the Crown during the Time of the Saxons, is confirmed to us by that noble Record which Sir Henry Spellman hath cited, Concil. Vol. I. p 291. That in a Parliament held in Calebuth, Ann. 787. it was ordain'd and enacted, that the King should be elected by the Parliament; and being chosen, they should have prudent Counsellors fearing God. And this Right over the Crown, and about the Disposal of it, which our Ancestors challenged and exercised all the Time of the Saxons, they have maintained and exerted with no less Courage and Vigour, in every Age since the coming in of the Norman Race.

58. William the First (who is unjustly stiled the Conqueror, having subdued none but Harold, and those that abetted him) did obtain the Crown by a free Choice and Submission of the Peers and Body of the People; and before his Coronation, he was made to swear that he would govern the People justly, and keep and observe unto them all their old Laws, and consent unto the having such further Laws enacted, as should be needful for the Preservation and Prosperity of the Realm.

Third's Reign, Lib. 2. Chap 16. and Fleta Lib. 1. Chap. 17. saith, That in governing of the People, the King has above him the Law, by which he is constituted King, and his Parliament, viz. the Earls and Barons; the Earls in Latin being called Comites, that is, Campanions and Fellows; now he that has a Fellow, has a Master, wherefore if the King become lawless, they must give him Law, and curb him. When we speak of curbing a King who is in Arms in order to oppress the State, it is evident that it imports an obliging him by Force, either to renounce his tyrannical Courses, or force him to leave the Land.

1

t

e

o t

1

1

d

t

14

61

6 ti

ti

02

C

Sb

. 07

- 41

th

3.87

60. Bracton further fays, The King doth no Wrong, in as much as be deth nothing but by Law. Potestas Regis est potestas Legis, peteftas juris non injuriæ, Bract. de Leg. Ang. The Power of the King is the Power of the Law; a Power of Right, not of Wrong. Again, Qui si facit injuriam, non est Rex, Ibid. If the King does Injustice, be is not King. In another Place he hath these Words, Exercere igitur debet Rex potestatem juris ficut Dei vicarius & minister in terra, quia illa potestas solius Dei est, potestas autem injuria Diaboli est non Dei, & cujus horum opera fecerit Rex ejus Minister erit. Igitur dum facit justitium Vicarius est regis æterni : Minister outem Eiaboli dum declinet ad injuriam, Ibid Lib. 3. The King therefore ought to exercise the Power of the Law, as becomes the Vicar and Minister of God upon Earth; because that Power is the Power of God alone; but the Power of doing Wrong is the Power of the Devil, and not of God; and the King is his Minister, whose Work he does. Whilf he does Justice, he is the Vicar of the eternal King; but if he deflect from it, to act unjustly, he is the Minister of the Devil. He also fays, that the King is, Singulis Major, Universis Minor.

for his collecting and strict observing the Laws of the Kingdom, as well as for the admired Sanctity of his Life, it is written. That the King ought to do all Things in his Kingdom according to Law, and by the Judgment of his Peers, St Edward's Law goes further, That unless the King perform his Duty, and answer the End for which

which he was constituted, not so much as the Name of a King Shall remain in him.

62. William Rufus, Henry the First, and Stephen, got the Confent of the People, by promifing to grant them their usual Laws and ancient Customs. Henry the First, Richard the First, King John, and Richard the Second, obliged themselves at their Coronation to grant them, and then the People confented to own them as their King; and Richard the First, and King John were conjured by the Arch-Bishops not to take upon them the Crown, unless they intended to perform their Oaths. If any King refused so to do, the Nobles thought it their Concern to hinder his Coronation, 'till he had either made, or promifed this Engagement. Henry the Fourth, Fifth and Sixth, were only Kings by Act of Parliament: And by what Instances have been quoted (and many more that might be given) it appears that the Kings of England were Kings by virtue of a Compact made between them and the People. This is apparent by the Compact made with the Conqueror, by the Nobility and Commonalty of England:

63. Florence of Worcester, Simon of Durham, R. Hoveden, expresly say, That William, called the Conqueror, made a League, or Compact, with the Arch-Bishops, Bishops, Earls, and Nobles of the Land, who met him at Beorcham, and swore Fealty to him; fo he reciprocally being required fo to do by the Arch-Bishop of York, made his personal Oath before the Altar of St. Peter, To defend the boly Church of God, and the Rectors of the same, to govern all the People subject to him justly, to establish equal Laws, and to see them duly executed. And Ingulphus his Secretary faith, That he, under the severest Penalties, proclaimed that the Laws of King Edward the Confessor should be perpetual, authentical, and be observed inviolably through the whole Kingdom of England, and as fuch he commended them to bis Justices. R. Hoveden faith further, That be commanded the Laws of King Edward to be observed in all Things: And that, in the Fourth Year of his Reign, by the Counsel of his Barons, he made the noble and wife Men of England to be fummoned throughout all the Provinces of England, that he might hear from them who were skill'd in their Law, their Rights and Customs, and that twelve Men were chosen out of every County, who swore to their Power to tread in a right Path, neither turning to the right Hand, on to the Left, and to make known to him the Custom and the Establishment of their Laws.

64. Henry the First, and Stephen who succeeded Henry made a Compact, and agreed and promised an Amendment of the Laws.

the state of the s

La Car

65. The original Compact ((a) the M. Paris) was, that the King should govern them according to the Tenor of such ancient Laws, and original Customs, as were received among them, according to the good, approved, and ancient Laws of the Kingdom. The Liberties in which the Nobles confided, saith M. Westminster: The Laws of their Country, saith W. of Mainsbury: The Laws of King Edward, say the aforemention'd the Disposal of it, which our Ancestors challenged and exercised all the Time of the Saxons, they have maintained and exerted with no less Courage and Vigour, in every Age since the coming

in of the Norman Race.

58. William the First (who is unjustly stiled the Conqueror, having subdued none but Harold, and those that abetted him) did obtain the Crown by a free Choice and Submission of the Peers and Body of the People; and before his Coronation, he was made to swear that he would govern the People justly, and keep and observe unto them all their old Laws, and consent unto the having such further Laws enacted, as should be needful for the Preservation and Prosperity of the Realm.

Third's Reign, Lib. 2. Chap 16. and Fleta Lib. 1. Chap. 17. saith, I hat in governing of the People, the King has above him the Law, by which he is constituted King, and his Parliament, viz. the Earls and Barons; the Earls in Latin being called Comites, that is, Campanions and Fellows; now he that has a Fellow, has a Master, where fore if the King become lawless, they must give him Law, and curb him. When we speak of curbing a King who is in Arms in order to oppress the State, it is evident that it imports an obliging him by Force, either to renounce his tyrannical Courses, or force him to leave the Land.

1

e

o t

1

2 d

a

t

V

11 b

I

tl.

th

or

C

Sbe

.or

· at

th

11

which

60. Bracton further fays, The King doth no Wrong, in as much as he doth nothing but by Law. Potestas Regis est potestas Legis, potestas juris non injuria, Bract. de Leg. Ang. The Power of the King is the Power of the Law; a Power of Right, not of Wrong. Again, Qui si facit injuriam, non est Rex, Ibid. If the King does Injustice, he is not King. In another Place he hath these Words, Exercere igitur debet Rex potestatem juris sicut Dei vicarius & minister in terra, quia illa potestas solius Dei est, potestas autem injuria Diaboli est non Dei, & cujus horum opera fecerit Rex ejus Minister. erit. Igitur dum facit justitium Vicarius est regis æterni : Minister autem Eiaboli dum declinet ad injuriam, Ibid Lib. 3. The King therefore ought to exercise the Power of the Law, as becomes the Vitar and Minister of God upon Earth; because that Power is the Power of God alone; but the Power of doing Wrong is the Power of the Devil, and not of God; and the King is his Minister, whose Work he does. Whilst he does fustice, he is the Vicar of the eternal King; but if he desiet from it, to act unjustly, he is the Minister of the Devil. He also fays, that the King is, Singulis Major, Universis Minor.

for his collecting and strict observing the Laws of the Kingdom, as well as for the admired Sanctity of his Life, it is written, That the King ought to do all Things in his Kingdom according to Law, and by the Judgment of his Peers, St. Edward's Law goes further, That unless the King perform his Duty, and answer the End for which he was constituted, not so much as the Name of a King Shall remain in him.

62. William Rufus, Henry the First, and Stephen, got the Confent of the People, by promifing to grant them their usual Laws and ancient Customs. Henry the First, Richard the First, King John, and Richard the Second, obliged themselves at their Coronation to grant them, and then the People consented to own them as their King; and Richard the First, and King John were conjured by the Arch-Bishops not to take upon them the Crown, unless they intended to perform their Oaths. If any King refused so to do, the Nobles thought it their Concern to hinder his Coronation, 'till he had either made, or promifed this Engagement. Henry the Fourth, Fifth and Sixth, were only Kings by Act of Parliament: And by what Inflances have been quoted (and many more that might be given) it appears that the Kings of England were Kings by virtue of a Compact made between them and the People. This is apparent by the Compact made with the Conqueror, by the Nobility and Commonalty of England:

63. Florence of Worcester, Simon of Durham, R. Hoveden, expresly say, That William, called the Conqueror, made a League, or Compact, with the Arch-Bishops, Bishops, Earls, and Nobles of the Land, who met him at Beorcham, and swore Fealty to him; fo he reciprocally being required fo to do by the Arch-Bishop of York, made his personal Oath before the Altar of St. Peter, To defend the holy Church of God, and the Rectors of the same, to govern all the People subject to him justly, to establish equal Laws, and to see them duly executed. And Ingulphus his Secretary faith, That he, under the severest Penalties, proclaimed that the Laws of King Edward the Confessor should be perpetual, authentical, and be observed inviolably through the whole Kingdom of England, and as fuch he commended them to bis Justices. R. Hoveden faith further, That he commanded the Laws of King Edward to be observed in all Things: And that, in the Fourth Year of his Reign, by the Counsel of his Barons, he made the noble and wife Men of England to be summoned throughout all the Provinces of England, that he might hear from them who were skill'd in their Law, their Rights and Customs, and that twelve Men were chosen out of every County, who swore to their Power to tread in a right Path, neither turning to the right Hand, or to the Left, and to make known to him the Custom and the Establishment of their Laws.

tas

the con the the

ni Sola Sola Sola Sola

Compact, and agreed and promised an Amendment of the Laws.

foould govern them according to the Tenor of such ancient Laws, and original Customs, as were received among them, according to the good, approved, and ancient Laws of the Kingdom. The Liberties in which the Nobles confided, saith M. Westminster: The Laws of their Country, saith W. of Mainsbury: The Laws of King Edward, say the aforemention'd eforemention'd Authors: The proper Laws and ancient Customs in which their Fathers lived, fays Hoveden, and the Chronicle of Lichfield: The Laws of England; the ancient Laws of this Realm, originally established, fay our Statutes: The Laws of the Land ; the good Laws of the Land, faith the Oath of Richard the Second : The Charters of the Liberties of England; the common Liberty, fay the Contenders for them with King John and Henry the Third: The fundamental Laws of the Kingdom, let it be observed. There are frequent Repetitions of these or the like Expressions of a Con. tract by the following Princes of this Realm as appears by the Oaths they took at their Coronation, to preferve to the People their ancient Rights, Liberties, original Customs and Laws, and by the continual Claim the People made to the Laws of their Country, the Laws of King Edward, and Magna Charta as Our Ancestors thought it absolutely necessary, that their Right. whoever wou'd be their King should make a Compact with them; and be as much engaged by Oath to grant their Privileges to them, as they were to fwear Allegiance to him, and commonly that was first done by their Kings, before they would engage to be their Subjects. And then it must be as reasonable, that he who doth continue to be their King, should continue to perform his Oaths, and grant unto them their Privileges, as for them to continue in their Duty and Allegiance. And when these Patria Lages, these ancient Laws of their Country were violated, they confrantly complained of the Injuffice of the Action, requiring the Observation of them; and when they could not prevail by fair Means, they quitted their Subjection, and fought to recover their Right by Arms. In fhort, this Oath and Compact is the very Ground and Caufe of the Oath of Allegiance; accordingly the Lord Chancellor Fortefeile, Lib. 9. p. 23. that our Kings are political Kings, who receive their Power from their People.

66 Grotius de Jure Bell. Lib. 1. Chap. 3. § 11. saith, Succession alone does not denominate the Manner, or specify the particular Form of the Governor, but is only a Continuation of that Right which was first settled; and as much as was first given, is afterwards continued by Succession, and no more. And then with him we may reasonably infer, that Succession only brings down to Kings what the first Election gave, and makes them only Kings according to Compact, and with the Condition agreed on at the first Admission of their Progenitors to the Exercise of the Royal Authority.

67. In the Year 1253, there was affembled a very full Parliament, to whom K. Henry III, promifed faithfully to ratify Magna Charta, and faithfully to observe all the Articles of it, which King John, and he at his Coronation, and often fince had sworn to observe; and this was done in the most solemn and ceremonial Manner that could be devised; for the King, with all the great Nobility of England, all the Bishops, and chief Prelates in their Ornaments, with burning Candles in their Hands, assembled

H

I

il

1

h

ti

d

F

t

K

d

t fi

I

I

775

of

η,

1;

d: ay

1:

ere

n.

he

ole

nd

eir

as nat ith

res

n-ge

he

m

to ia

ey

ng

by

rer

the

gly

are

ion

1-0f

rst

oly

rft

ot,

eir

ia-

ma

ch

ora

10-

he

in

ed

to

to hear the terrible Sentence of Excommunication upon all the Infringers of the fame; and at the lighting of those Candles, the King having one in his Hand, gave it to one of the Prelates faying. It becomes not me, tubo am no Priest, to hold this Candles my Heart Shall be a greater Testimony; and withat laid his Hand on his Breast the whole Time the Sentence was feading, which was thus pronounced, In the Name of the omnifotent God, &c. which done, the Charter of King John his Father was read; in the End, having thrown away their Candles, they cried out, Solet them who incur this Sentence be extinct and fink in Hell; and the King with a loud Voice faid, As God help me, I will as a Man, a Christian, a Knight, a King crowned and anointed, inviolably observe all these Things. But not with standing all this, the King the very next Year broke his Oath, and continuing to govern contrary to the Charter in the Year 1263, the Barons made War upon him under the Command of Simon of Monfort, who fueceeded fo far as to take the King and his Sons Prisoners; but the Prince escaping out of Prison, fights with Simon Hand to Hand, and flew him. The Historians of those Times call'd him not a Rebel nor a Traytor, but a most devout Servant of God and the Church, and a most faithful Protector, Shield, and Defender of the Kingdom of England, and a Martyr for the Liberties of Church and State, Chron. de Marl. p. 228. At the End of these Wars in the Year 1200, a Parliament was held at Marlborough, where the Statutes called The Statutes of Marlborough were enacted; in the fifth Chapter of which it is decreed, That the great Charter, and the Charta de Forresta shall be observed in all their Articles, both concerning the King and his Subjects; and bere (faith the Lord Coke) it is to be observed, that after this Par-Hament, neither Magna Charta, nor Charta de Forresta, was ever attempted to be impugned or questioned, whereupon Peace and Tranquility have fince enfued. Inft. Lib. 2. p. 102.

68. Magna Charta being only an Abridgment of our ancient Laws and Customs, the King that swears to it, swears to them all, and is not admitted to be the Interpreter of it, or to determine what is Good or Evil, sit to be observed or annulled in it, and he can can have no more Power over the rest. This having been confirmed by more Parliaments than we have had Kings since that Time, the same Obligation must still lie upon them all, as upon John and Henry, in whose Time that Claim of Right was compiled. We know the Value our Ancestors set upon their Liberties, and the Courage with which they defended them; and we can have no better Example to encourage us never to suffer them to be violated or diminished.

ever had the Laws of England, as the Lord Coke observes, have ever had the Laws of England in great Estimation and Reverence, and would never suffer them to be changed. This made Herry the First (saith he) write to Pope Pascal thus; Let your Holiness E 2 know, that by the Help of God whilft I live, the Dignities and Custom of our Kingdom of England shall not be diminished; and if I, which God forbid, should so far deject myself, my Nobles, and all the People of England, would never suffer them to be altered. Inst Lib. 2. p. 97.

70. In the Letters which all the Nobility of England, by Affent of the whole Commonalty affembled in Parliament at Lincoln, wrote to Pope Boniface, we find these Words; By Virtue of our Oath we are bound to the Observation and Defence of the Liberties, Customs, and the Laws of our Country, which by the Help of God we will defend with our whole Power; nor do we, nor will we permit our Lord the King, though he were willing to attempt. Things so unusual, undue, and prejudicial to the Royal Dignity: And this was sealed by 104 Earls and Barons in the Name of all the Commonalty of England. Rot. Parl. 28. Ed. 1.

71. King John received the Crown by Way of Election, as being chosen by the States, saith Daniel. p. 127. M. Paris saith, That all consented to the Speech of the Arch-Bishop, that none ought not to succeed another in the Kingdom, unless he were elected by the Community, and thereupon they elected the Count, and took him for their King. M. Paris, p. 138.

72. King James in his fourth Speech at Whitehall, A. D. 1609 faith, That the King was Lex Loquens, after a Sort, binding himself by a double Oath to the Observation of the fundamental Laws of his Kingdom; tacitly, as by being a King, and so bound to protect, as well the People as the Laws of his Kingdom, and express by his Oath at his Coronation; so as every just King in a settled Kingdom, is bound to observe that Faction made to his People by his Laws in framing his Government agreeable thereunto. And therefore a King governing in a settled Kingdom ceases to be a King, and degenerates into a Tyrant, as soon as he leaves off to rule according to the Laws; therefore all Kings that are not Tyrants or perjur'd, will be glad to bind themselves within the Limits of the Laws, and they that persuade them to the contrary are Vipers and Pests both against them and the Common-wealth.

73. As the Subjects of the King are born to Lands and other Things, so are they born to inherit and enjoy the Laws of this Realm, that so every Man have an equal Benefit by Law. Plow 55. B. Kitch of Courts, p 4. It is therefore called Common Right, and is a greater Inheritance to every Man, than that which descends to him as Heir from his Parents; because thereby his Goods, Lands, Wise, Children, his Body, Life, Honour, and Estimation are protected from Injury and Wrong, 2 Inst. 56. This Common Right is called the Law of the Subject, and the Judges are sworn to execute Justice (as my Lord Coke says, 12 Ch. 64) according to Law and Custom of England. All which do prove how justly the Laws are called the great Inheritances of every Subject, and the Inheritance of Inheritance, without which Inheritance we have no Inheritance. The King's Prerogative is Law too; because as it

P

n

g

th

de

do

1

th

fh

R

I

fiv

on

was resolved, the King hath no Prerogative, but that which the Law of the Land allows him, Co.76. Jud. Jenkins's Works, p. 131. The Law says, the King is the Fountain of Justice, and all Justice which is done within the Realm, is said, and said properly, to slow from this Fountain; but then it must always run in the certain and known Channels that the Law hath prescribed.

74. Glanvil, who was a learned Lawyer, and Chief Justice in Henry the Second's Days, above 500 Years ago, writ a Book of the Common Laws of England, which is the ancientest of any extant, touching the Subject, informs us, that there was in his Time such a Thing as High Treason against the Kingdom: His Words are these; Crimen, quod in legibus dicitur Crimen lasa Majestatis, ut de Nece vel Seditione Persona Domini Regis vel Rega ni, &c. Cowel's Inter. tit. Glanvil. 1. c. 2. p. 1.

75. Those who flatter a King that he is above the Law, do most notoriously contradict one of the first Axioms of our Regal Government, which is, that Lex facit Regem; and he hath originally subjected himself to the Law by his Coronation Oath, Jud. Jenk. Works, p. 134. Mirror. ch. 5. § 1. p. 225. This proves a King of England to be King by Law, as also that the Coronation Oath is a Fundamental Law of this Kingdom, and is antecedent to the Subjects Homage and Oath of Fealty, and that our first Monarchs was made fo by their own Confent. He is a Legal King, his Authority is under a legal Extent; and as Fortescue fays, his Power Royal is restrained by Power Politick, for de Laudibus Legum Angliæ, p. 16. Therefore a King's Grant of any Favour made contrary to Law, is void, according to another Axiom of our Government, Nihil aliud potest Rex, &c. quam quod de Jure potest, Bracton. He can do nothing as a King, but what he can legally do: So that is is made the very Essence of our Kings to govern according to Law, for where the Will governs and not the Law, there he is no longer King; ubi Voluntas imperat, &c. The Law is to be the only Rule and Measure of his Government; and upon this Account it is truly faid, that a King of England can do no Wrong; nor will his Prerogative be any Warrant to him to do an Injury to any one; Noy. 182. 1 Co. 44. B. applaud. 247. Jenk. Works 41. He c nnot by his Grant or Charter alter a Law, nor alter Inheritance, for this would be wrong, which he cannot do, Fortescue c. 9. p. 256. 9 Co. 123, Bro. abr. tit. Perog. N. 15, 18, 53

76. By the II Rich. II. c. 10. It is ordained and established, that neither Letters of the Signet, nor of the King's Privy Seal, shall be from thenceforth sent in Damage or Prejudice of the Realm, nor in Disturbance of the Law. Vid. Sir Rob. Cott. Abri.

I Rich. II. Num. 96.

n

g

5

S

,

n

a

or of rs

er

5:

nd

to is,

0-ht

to

he

n-

no

it

V23

77. In the 11 Rich. II. Rot. Parl. Pars 1, 2, 3. Trefilian and five Judges more, with one of the King's Serjeants at Law, and one of the King's Council at Law, for delivering their extravagant

gant illegal and extra judicial Opinions, That the King might a-void a Statute, Ordinance and Commission, which had been made for the Safety of both King and Kingdom in the last Parliament, by the Peers and Commons of the Land, with the King's Assent, were executed as false Traitors, by a Judgment from the most supreme Court of Judicature in the Kingdom, the Parliament.

78. By the Records, 7 Henry IV. Rot. Parl. Numb. 59. it is declared, The King has no Prerogative that derogates from Justice and Equity: And Bracton, in Lib. iii. c. 9. faith, The Regal Power is according to Law: He has no Power to do any Wrong, nor eanthe King do any thing but what the Law warrants. Our Records of the greatest Authority with us declare, That our Kings owe all their Power, not to any Right of Inheritance of Conquest, or Succesfion, but to the People. So in the Parliament Rolls of Henry IV. Numb. 108. we read, That the Kingly Office and Power was granted by the Commons to King Henry IV. and before him to his Predeceffor Richard II. Thus the House of Commons ordered expresty to be entered upon Record, That they bad granted to King Richard to use the same Liberty that the Kings of England before him had used: Which because he abused, to the Subversion of the Laws, and contrary to his Oath at his Coronation, the same Persons that granted him that Power, took it back again and deposed him. The fame Men, as appears by the fame Record, declared in open Parliament, That having Confidence in the Prudence and Moderation of Henry IV. they will and enact, That he enjoy the same Authority that his Ancestors enjoy'd: By which, and other Examples, it is plain that the Kingly Office is nothing but a Trust, and a Gift by Vox Populi of all the People by their Delegates, in Parliament affembled.

79. Where the Monarchy is Regular, as in Germany, England, &c. the Kings can neither make, nor change Laws: They are under the Law, and the Law is not under them. Their Letters of Commands are not to be regarded. In the Administration of Justice, the Question is not what pleases them, but what the Law declares to be right, which must have its Course, whether the King be busy or at Leisure, whether he will or not. The King, who never dies, is always present in the supreme Courts, and neither knows, nor regards the Pleasure of the Man that wears the Crown.

80. We have had no King, fince William I. more hardy than Henry VIII. and yet he acknowledged the Power of making, changing, and repealing Laws, to be in the Parliament. It was not he, but the Parliament, that dissolved the Abbies; he did not take their Lands to himself, but received what the Parliament thought fit to give him. He did not reject the Supremacy of the Pope, nor assume any other Power in spiritual Matters than the Parliament conferr'd upon him.

t

ti

CI

i

n

fi

n

ti

tl

P

n

n

Ħ

0

H

8 te

if

O

di

de

10

of 11

F.

t-

ely

rd

d:

nd

at

n.

en

0-

me

m-

nd

ar-

nd,

are ers

ion

the

her

The

rts,

ears

han

ing,

was not

nent

the

the

8L.

81. The Judges of the Land, who are chosen by the King, by the Advice of his Council, are so far from depending upon the Will of the King, 18 Edw III. Chap. 1. that they swear faithfully to ferve the People as well as the King, and to do Justice to every Man according to the Law of the Land, notwithstanding any Writs, Letters or Commands received from him; and in Default thereof, they are to forfeit their Bodies, Lands and Goods, as in Cases of Treason. Queen Elizabeth, and her Counsellors, prefied the Judges very hardly to obey the Patent, under her great Seal, in the Case of Cavendish, but they answered, That bath she and they had taken an Oath to keep the Law, and if they found obey ber Commands, the Law would not warrant them, &c. Andarfon's Rep. p. 155. And befides the Offence against God, their Country, and the Common wealth, they alledged the Example of Emplon and Dudley, (who were executed as Traitors, as were Gavefton, the two Spencers, Trefilian, Strafford, and others, for subverting the Laws of the Land in Obedience to the King's Command) whereby they faid, They were deterred from obeying her illegal Commands. They who had fworn to keep the Law, notwithstanding the King's Writs, knew that the Law depended not upon his Will: And the fame Oath that obliged them not to regard any Command they should receive from him, shewed, that they were not to expect Indemnity by it; and not only, that the King had neither the Power of making, altering, mitigating, or interpreting the Law, but that he was not at all to be heard, in general or particular Matters, otherwife than as he speaks in the common Course of Justice by the Courts legally established. According to Magna Charta, Judgments are to be passed by Equals: No Man can be imprisoned, disseiz'd of his Freehold, deprived of Life or Limb, unless by Sentence of his Peers: And Bracton fays, That in receiving Justice the King as equal to another Man: Which could not be, if Judgments were given by him, and he were exempted from the Judgment of all by that Law, which has put all Judgments into the Hands of the People. This Power is executed by them in grand or petty Juries, and the Judges are Affiftants to them in explaining the difficult Points of the Law, in which tis prefumed they should be learned. The Strength of every Judgment confifts in the Verdict of these Juries, which the Judges do not give, but pronounce or declare. And the same Law that makes good a Verdict given contrary to the Advice or Direction of the Judges, exposes them to the Penalties, if upon their own Heads, or a Command from the King, they should presume to give Sentence, without, or contrary to a Verdict; and no Pretentions to a Power of interpreting the Law, can exempt them if they break it: Nay, even in special Verdicts, the Judges are only Affistants to the Juries, who find it specially, and the Verdict is from them, tho the Judges having heard the Point argued, declare the Sense of the Law thereupon. 82. 82. By an Act of the first of William and Mary, declaring the Rights and Liberties of the Subject, and settling the Succession of the Crown, they do in the first Place, (as their Ancestors in like Cases have usually done) for the Vindicating and Asserting their Ancient Rights and Liberties, declare,

1. That the pretended Power of suspending of Laws, or the Execution of Laws by Regal Authority, without Consent of Pariament.

is illegal.

II. That the pretended Power of dispensing with Laws, or the Exeeution of Laws by Regal Authority, as it hath been assumed, and exercised of late, is illegal.

III. That the Commission for erecting the late Court of Commissioners for Ecclesiastical Causes, and all other Commissions and Courts of the like Nature, are illegal and pernicious.

IV. That levying Money for, or to the Use of the Crown, by pretence of Prerogative, without Grant of Parliament for longer Time, or in other Manner, than the same is, or shall be granted, is illegal

V. That it is the Right of the Subjects to Petition the King, and all Commitments and Prosecutions for such petitioning, are illegal.

VI. That the raising, or keeping a Standing Army within the Kingdom, in Time of Peace, unless it be with Consent of Parliament, is against Law.

VII. That the Subjects, which are Protestants, may have Arms for their Defence, according to their Conditions, and as allowed by Law.

to be held frequently.

VIII. That Election of Members of Parliament ought to be free.

IX. That the Freedom of Speech, and Debates, or Proceedings in Parliament, ought not to be impeach'd, or questioned in any Court or Place out of Parliament.

X. That excessive Bail ought not to be required, nor excessive Fines imposed, nor cruel and unusual Punishments inflicted.

XI. That Jurors ought to be impannelled, and returned; and Jurors which pass upon Men, in Trials for High Treason, ought to be Freeholders.

XII. That all Grants and Promises of Fines and Forfeitures of particular Persons before Conviction, are illegal and void

XIII And that for Redress of all Grievances, and for the amending, strengthning, and preserving of the Laws, Parliaments ought

And they do claim, demand, and infift upon all, and fingular the Premises, as their undoubted Rights and Liberties; and that no Declarations, Judgments, Doings, or Proceedings, to the Prejudice of the People in any of the said Premises, ought in any wise to be drawn hereaster into Consequence or Example. And whereas it hath been found by Experience, that it is inconsistent with the Sasety and Welfare of this Protestant Kingdom, to be governed by a Popish Prince, or by any King or Queen marrying a Papist, 'tis declared, That all and every Person and Persons, that

fi

P

S

tl

A

tl

C

th

th

A

ui

no

an

W

thi

is, are, or shall be reconciled to, or shall profess the Popish Religion, or shall marry a Papist, shall be excluded, and be for ever uncapable to inherit, possess, or enjoy the Crown and Government of this Realm, and Ireland, and the Dominions thereunto belonging, or any last of the same, or to have, use, or exercise any Regal Power, Authority, or Jurisdiction within the same: And in all, and every such Case, or Cases, the People of these Realms shall be and are hereby absolved of their Allegiance; and the said Crown and Government shall from time to time descend to, and be enjoyed by such Person or Persons, being Protestants, as should have inherited and enjoyed the same, in Case the said Person or Persons, so reconciled, holding Communion, or professing or marrying, as aforefaid, were naturally dead. "

S

9, d

be

t,

715

ed

€.

in

or nes

11-

be

s of

nd-

gbt

ılar

hat

the

any

And

ent

o be ring

that

25,

83. 'Tis plain from what hath been faid, that all Government, Authority, and Magistracy, proceeds from the People. I will shew, that they have Authority to set aside the next Heir to Government, when unfit or uncapable to govern: And alio, to disposses them that are in Possession, if they observe not the Laws and Conditions by which, and for which their Dignities were given them; and when it is done upon just and urgent Causes, and by publick Authority of the whole Body, the Justice As when the Prince shall endeavour to stathereof is plain. blish Idolatry, or any Religion which is repugnant to the Scripture, contrary to the Laws of the Land, or to destroy the People, or make them Slaves to his tyrannical Will and Pleafure. For as the whole Body Natural may cure its Head when out of Order, so may the Body Politick cure or purge their Heads, when they are pernicious or deftructive to the Body Politick; seeing that a Body civil may have divers Heads by Succession, or Election, and cannot be bound to one, as a Body Natural is: Which Body Natural, if it had Ability to cut of its aching or fickly Head, and take another, I doubt not but it would do it, and that all Men would confess it had Authority fufficient, and Reason so to do, father than that the other Parts should perish, or live in Pain and continual Torment: So may the Body Politick chuse another Head and Governor in the room of its destructive one; which hath been done for many Ages, and God hath wonderfully concurred for the most Part) with fuch judicial Acts of the Commonwealth against their evil Princes; not only prospering the same, but by giving commonly some notable Successor in Place of the deprived; thereby both to justify the Fact, and remedy the Fault of him that went before. Saul was flain by the Philistines, by God's Appointment, for not fullfilling the Law and Limits prescribed unto him. Ammon was lawful King also, yet he was flain for not walking in the Way prescribed him by God, 2 Kings xxi. and David and Josiah were made Kings in their Room, who were two most excellent Princes. Shalam, Pekabiah, and Pekang three wicked and idolatrous Kings of Lymel, were flant one are anosber a another; and all the Kings of Israel, who violated the Covenant and Conditions annexed to their Crowns, did, for the most Part, lose their Lives, and underwent the utter Extirpation of their Posterities from the Crown. Rehoboam, for only threatning to oppress the People, was deserted by them, who chose Feroboam his Servant in his stead, which was approved of by God.

84. If I should instance all the Kings of Israel, whom God permitted (or appointed) to be slain, and those that were carried away Captive by the Heathens, for their unjust Government, I should be too copious. But I will leave the Hebrews, and give you several Examples of the depriving of evil Princes of the Government, in France, Spain, Portugal, &c. And last of all in Scotland and England, and the Happiness and Prosperity that did attend those Proceedings; and by Consequence God approved thereof, and does approve of fuch Acts.

85. There were too great Changes made of the Royal Line in France; the first from Pharamond to the Line of Pepin, and the most remote in Blood of his Descendants having often been preferred before the nearest, and Bastards before the Legitimate Issue, they were at last all laid aside. Second from Pepin to Hugo Capet, in which Family the Crown remains to this Day. Childerick the Third was deprived for his evil Government, and Pepin was chosen King in his stead, whose Posterity reigned for many Years after him, and were brave Kings, as History doth testify. Lewis the Third, and Charles, Sirnamed le Gross, were both deprived by the States of France for their evil Government, and fuch who were thought more worthy appointed in their stead. All French Historians do attribute to these great Changes that have been made by the People, the Prosperity and Greatness of their Kingdom. Henry the Third, before he was King of France, was chosen King of Polonia, who departing thence without Leave, and not returning according to his Promife, was deprived by Act of Parliament.

86. In Spain, Rotherick and Alphonso, were deprived for their evil Government. Bernard, the Son of Charlemaine of France, was rejected, because they would not be governed by a Frenchman. Alphonso, the Third, Sirnamed, The Great a brave Prince, yet at last fell into Tyranny, was twice deposed, Puffen. p. 29, 30. Favila, King of Castile, a cruel Tyrant, was deposed by the Castilians, who abjured him, and set up Magi like that of the Persians, to govern them. Alphonso the Fourth, being judg'd unfit to govern, was obliged to surrender the Kingdom to his Brother Ramicus. Ordonius usurped the Crown, and banishing Santius Crassus, the People rose to restore their good King, and pulled down Ordonius, and set up Santius the second Time. Blanch, Wise of Lesvis the Eighteenth of France, was put by, and the younger Sifter Beringaria, fet up in her stead. Alphonso the Tenth was deposed, and Flavio Suintilla, was deprived for his evil Government, together with all his Posterity, and Sissionanda chosen in his room. Peter, Sirnamed The Cruei, was twice dethroned; the last time, they sent for a Bastard Brother of his. named Henry, Count of Trastaramara, Bastard to Alphonso, the Eleventh King of Castile, that lived in Prance, defiring him to come with some Frenchmen, to affist them in that Act, and take the Crown upon himself; which he did by the Help of the Spaniards, and flew him in Fight Hand to Hand, and so enjoyed the Crown and his Posterity after him: This Henry was a most excellent King, as well for his Courage in War, as for his other brave Qualities. Henry the Fourth, called The Scandal of Spain, who being incapable of getting Children, hired another Man to lie with his Queen, and declared that Daughter so begotten, Heir apparent, for which the Nobility entered into an Affociation, deposed him, and gave the Crown to Alphonso the Eleventh. King Ferdinand, and his Daughter married to the King of Castile, and her Uncle, by the Father's Side, were rejected, and the Crown given to John, a Knight of Calatrava, and Bastard to an Uncle of Ferdinand their King.

87. In the Year 1581. the States of Holland, in a general Assembly at the Hague, abjur'd all Obedience and Subjection to Philip, King of Spain, and in a Declaration justify'd their so doing; For that by his tyrannous Government, against Faith so often given and broken, he had lost his Right to all the Belgick Provinces; that therefore they deposed him, Thun. lib. 74. From that Time to this, no State or Kingdom has prospered so much as

thev.

f

e

y

d

-

23 ft

bd

al

ere

1e

'n or

d,

re

br

es re

ch

en

gas

e,

by

or

of

by

a

ed,

nt,

uD

nja

to uple

us,

wis

the

88. In Portugal, Alphonsus was deposed because he was young, and his Mother encroaching upon their Liberties. Don Sancho the Second was deprived by the universal Consent of all Portugal, and Don Alonzo, his Brother set up, who, amongst other great Exploits, was the first that set Portugal free from all Subjection, Dependance, and Homage to the Kingdom of Castile. And his Son who was his Successor, builded and sounded above forty great Towns in Portugal; who was likewise a most rare Prince; and his Offspring ruleth to this Day.

89. In Denmark, Christopher the Second, Waldemar and Eric were deposed for their evil Government, and Christian, the Second, was deposed Anno 1523 for his evil Government, and Frederick, Duke of Holstein, was chose in his stead. The Ancestors of the present King of Denmark, Cisternus, for his intolerable Cruelty was deprived, and his Three Children disinherited, and his Uncle Frederick, Duke of Holstein, was chosen in his stead, whose Off-spring remaineth in the Crown.

F 2

90. In Poland, Lecticus the Second, Anne 750, Lescus the First, Miccissanus, Senior, and Ulidislaus the Third, firnam'd Lecticus, were deposed for their Male-Administration. Sigismond. an Hungarian, was refused the Crown, though Heir to it, because he was an Hungarian. Henry of Anjou deserted Poland upon his being made King of France, upon which they chose a new

King.

91. In Sweden, Ingellus, Amund, Swercher, Waldimar, Birgir, Magnus, and Albert his Successor, were all twice deposed; Erick was twice deposed, and Christopher, Duke of Bavaria, made King in his flead; Charles Cnateson was deposed, and Christian, King of Denmark, crown'd in his stead, who likewise turning Tyrant, was deposed, and Charles was restored again, and deposed again for his Tyranny, and restored again, and died in Posfession. Stensture reigned fourteen Years as Regent, not as King was deposed, and John the Second, made King, who turning Tyrant, was deposed, and Stensture made Regent again. Erick was, by the universal Rifing of the People, deposed for his Tryanny, and his Brother Charles made King in his stead. Sigismond of Poland, about the Beginning of this Age, was deposed for attempting to restore Popery, and, in a full Assembly of the Estates, declared incapable to reign, and Charles, Duke of Sundermania, his Uncle, made King in his Room, who was the Father of the Great Gustavus Adolphus.

within ?

92. Tarquin being expelled for his Tyranny, the Romans had fuch a Hatred against the Family; that they would never after name any of their Children Tarquin. Upon the Alteration of their Government, Junius Brutus was made Consul, who executed Justice upon his own Sons, and stood himself upon the Judgment Seat, and faw them put to Death, for conspiring to restore the Family of Tarquin to the Throne. Romulus, Numa, Pompilius Tullius, Hostilius, Ancus Martius, Tarquinius Priscus, Servius Tullius, and Torquinius Superbus, were deposed for their Tyranny, and the Roman Government turn'd into a Commonwealth, the best regulated at first that ever the World saw. The deposing the Roman Emperors would be endless to enumerate: No Man can pretend they had any divine Right, who were most of them of mean Birth, and proclaim'd by the Soldiery. Valentinian was the Son of a Roper, Jovian of mean Birth, and a Foot Soldier, and the like; they came in by Force, and were driven out by Force; thirty fix of them were murder'd by one another. There are no Parts of History, but are full of Examples of this kind, and the nearer we go back to the Beginning of Government, the more Inftances we have of the People's fetting up, and pulling down their Monarchs for their Tyranny.

93. Nay, the very Emperors of Germany, when they infringed the Rules of Government which they had fworn inviolably to F

000

U

fi

4

K

observe, and violated the fundamental Laws of the Empire. States have opposed and resisted them, and finally deprived them of the Empire. The German Lawyers have always held, and do still hold it for a certain Truth, That when they abuse their Power for the overturning of the State, or for invading the Rights of the Princes of the Empire, that it is a Right inherent in the Empire to deprive them of their imperial Dignity, and to confer the same on another. This is declared by Lampadius, Arnixaus, Diderick, Cenringius, Lambert, Schafnaburg, Aventin, Annal. Lib. 7. Cufpin, and many others. Lewis the Good, in the Year 833, Henry the Fourth, and Wencenslaus in the Year 1400, were deposed by the Electors of the Empire for their evil Government. 94. In Scotland the Nobility and Gentry, &c. took Arms against Durstus their King for his intolerable Cruelty, and slew him and his Confederates in Battle, (and put by his Sons, left they should imitate their Father's Vices) and elected Even his Brother in his Stead, who leaving a Bastard Son, the Kingdom was conferred on him, Crathy Cinthus having furpriz'd and flain Donald for his Tyranny, he was unanimously chosen King. Ethus was for his evil Government deprived, and Gregory made King in his Stead. James the Third of Scotland, for endeavouring to introduce an arbitrary Government after the Violation of many folemn Promises to the contrary, the Nobility and Gentry, in great Numbers affembled themselves together, having his eldeft Son, about fixteen Years of Age at their Head, to oppose his Defigns, who met in the Field of Sterling, where the King was deferted and flain, and his Son was declared King; and in a free Parliament foon after call'd the Battle of the Field of Sterling, was fully debated, and by the unanimous Confent of the three Estates it was declared and adjudged, That those that were slain in the faid Field of Sterling in the Assistance and Defence of the late King, had fallen by their own deserving, and justly suffered the Punishment of their Rashness: That the Conquerors were innocently guilty of the Blood there shed, and fairly acquitted of any Pursuit. The Act of Parliament condemns the arbitrary Proceedings of the faid King King James the third, fines and forfeits most of the Nobility and Gentry that stood by him at the Battle of Sterling, and justifies and clears all those that fought against him in Defence of their Laws and Liberties, as is to be feen in the Scotch Acts of Parliaments printed by the Authority of Queen Mary of Scotland, of which see more in Buchanan, Drummond's History of the five James's, and others. Buchanan, speaking of his Country, saith, That it was free from the Beginning, created itself Kings upon this very Condition, That the Empire being conferred on them by the Suffrages of the People, if the Matter required it, they might take it away by the same Suffrages; of which Law many Footsteps have remained to our Age.

g

n.

is

1-

ed

ne

11-

a-

d er

of

Le-

he

to lu-

if.

for 2 rld

to

ht,

the

ean

ce,

er'd

of

ineo-

heir

ged

y to

(before and fince the Conquest) Archigallo, Emerian, Vortigern, Sigibert King of the West Saxons, Beonred, and Alured, King of Northumberland, were all deprived of their Thrones for their evil Government, and such who were thought more worthy preferred in their Stead. King Edwin being deprived for his unjust Government, the Crown was given to his Brother Edgar, who was one of the rarest Princes that the World had in his Time, both for Peace and War, Justice, Piety and Valour. He kept a Navy (saith Stow) of three thousand and six hundred Ships, distributed in divers Parts for the Defence of the Realm, and he built and restored forty-seven Monasteries at his own Charge, &c.

96. After the Conquest, King Edward the Second, Richard the Second, and Richard the Third, were, for not governing according to the Laws of the Land, deprived of the Government, and Edward the Third, and Henry the Fourth and Seventh were preferred in their Rooms, who were most rare and valiant Princes. who have done many important Acts in this Kingdom, and have raised many Families to Nobility, put down others, changed States both Abroad and at Home, altered the Course of Descent in the Blood-Royal, and the like; which was unjust, and is void to this Day, if the Changes and Deprivations of the former King were unlawful, (according to the Doctrine of Paffive-Obedience, without Referve) and confequently all those Princes that have succeeded them (which yet never failed of a constant Descent) were Usur pers, and those who do pretend to the Crown of England at this Day, have no Title; but by virtue of the late Act of Parliament (which was never denied, or dare be denied) for that fromthofe Men they descended, who were put in the Place of the afore-mentioned deprived by the People. And this is, and hath been the Custom and Practice of all Kingdoms and Common-wealths, to deprive their Princes for their evil Government; and that God hath, and does concur with the same. is plain from the Examples before mentioned of the Prosperity and Happiness that hath attended those Acts.

On In the Reign of King John, the Barons, Prelates and Commons, took a folemn Oath, That if he should refuse to grant and confirm their Laws and Liberties, they would make War against him so long, and withdraw themselves from their Allegiance to him, until he should confirm to them by a Charter ratisfied with his Seal, all Things which they required; and if the King should afterwards peradventure recede from his Oath, as they verily believed he would, by reason of his double Dealing, they would forthwith, by seizing on his Castles, compel him to give Satisfaction. He afterwards breaking his Oath and Promise, the Barons said, What shall we do with this wicked King? If we let him thus alone, he will destroy us and our People; it is expedient therefore that he should be expelled the Throne: We will not have him any longer to reign over us. And accordingly, cordingly they fent some of their own Body, both Lords and Commons, beyond Sea for Lewis the Prince of France, whom they had chosen (M. West. 274.) to be their King, and swore Fealty to him, but they afterwards discovering that he had sworn that he would oppress them, and extirpate all their Kindred, they rejected him, and fet up Henry the Third, King John's eldest Son, who was not full Nine Years old. The Earl of Pembrook, Great Marshal, spoke to this Effect to them, Tho' we have prosecuted the Father, and that justly, yet this young Infant is pure and innocent from those his Doings: You know what the Scripture saith, The Child shall not bear the Iniquity of his Father: Come let us pity his tender Years, and make and constitute him to be our King, and throw off this Toke of vile Slavery from us, this French King's Son and his People. At last the whole Council, as if they had been inspired from Heaven, cried out with one Voice, Fiat sic, fiat Rex, fiat Rex; be it so, he shall be our King, Ann. Dom. 1216. So the Day was appointed for his Coronation, which was Simon and Jude, Knighton de vent. Angliæ Col. 2426, 2427. and vid. Mat. Par. Fol. 289, and 309.

of the Reign of Edward the Second, the Parliament met at London, and declared by common Consent, That he was unworthy of the Crown; and for many Causes deposed him, and chose his Son Edward by unanimous Consent, and his Election was publickly declared in Westminster Hall: Some of both Houses were sent to Edward the Second to acquaint him with the Election of his Son, and to require him to resign the Crown, which accordingly he did; all the People consented to the Election, as did all the Prelates, and the Arch-Bishop made an Oration on these Words, Vox Populi, Vox Dei, exhorting all to pray for the King Elect.

t

1 r

t

n

e

-

t

d

13

)-

e,

y

nd

nt

m,

al,

-ds

ld,

072

k-

do

us

the

ac-

ly,

96. In the 39th Year of Henry the Sixth, Richard Duke of York lays his Claim to the Crown in Parliament, and after long Argument made, and deliberate Consultation had among the Peers, Prelates and Commons of the Realm, fays Grafton, It was condescended and agreed, that King Henry having been taken for King above thirty-eight Years, that he should enjoy the same, during bis Life: But if he either died or resigned, or forfeited the same, for infringing any Point of this Concord, then the said Crown and Authority should immediately descend to the Duke of York, if be then lived, or elfe to the next Heir of his Line or Lineage; and that the Duke from thenceforth should be Protector and Regent of the Land, provided always, That if the King did closely or apparently fludy, or go about to break, or alter this Agreement, or to compass or imagine the Death or Destruction of the said Duke or his Blood, he should forfeit the Crown, and the Duke of York Should have it. These Articles were not only written, fealed, and favorn to by the two Parties, but also were enacled in the High Court of Parliament. Grafton's Chron. fol. 647. vid. Cott. Records 39 Henry the Sixth, from

from No. 10. to No. 33. But Duke Richard being flain in the Battle of Wakefield, his Son Edward called a Council of Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and laid open his Title to the Real m to them, with the Articles of Agreement. After the Lords had confidered and weighed his Title and Declaration, they determined by Authority of the faid Council: Forasmuch as King Henry the Sixth, contrary to his Oath, Honour, and Agreement, had violated and infringed the Order taken and enacted in the last Parliament; and also because he was insufficient to rule the Realms, and unprofitable to the Common-wealth, he was therefore, by the aforefaid Authority, deprived and rejected of all kingly Honour and regal Sovereignty, and incontinent Edward Earl of Marche, was by the Lords in the faid Council affembled. named, elected, and admitted for King and Governor of the Realm. And the People being got together in St. John's Fields, to behold the Muster that was there that Day, the Lord Pauconbridge, who took the Musters, wisely declared to the Multitude, the Offences and Breaches of the late Agreement done by King Henry the Sixth, and demanded whether they would have the faid King Henry to reign any longer over them, to whom they with one Voice answer'd, Nay, nay; then asking them if they would ferve and obey the Earl of Marche as their Sovereign Lord, they answer'd, Yea, yea, crying King Edward with many great Shouts and clapping of Hands. The Lords being advertised of the loving Confent which the Commons frankly and freely of their free Will had given, they all prefently, with feveral of the most substantial Commons, went to Baynard's Castle, and acevaluted the faid Earl with their Election and Admission, and the loving Affent of the faithful Commons; and the next Day, being conveyed to Westminster, his Title and Claim to the Crown was declared; first, as Son and Heir to Richard his Father, right Inheritor to the fame; fecondly, by Authority of Parliament, and Forfeiture committed by King Henry. And the Commons being again demanded, if they would admit and take the faid Earl as their Sovereign Lord, all with one Voice, cried, Yea, yea; which Agreement concluded, he was then again proclaimed, and the 29th of June following, he was crowned King at Westminster, by the Name of Edward the Fourth. Graf. Chron. fol. 652, 653, 658. vid. Speed's Hift. fol. 851. Col. 1, 2. Stow. fol. 414, 415. Col. 1.

100. Thus by the common Usage of England, which is the common Law of England, Kings (degerating into Tyrants) may be deprived for evil Government, and others set up in their Stead, is plain from the aforegoing Examples.

People, is plain from the following Examples in Scripture, Deut. xvi. 18, 19. The Children of Ifrael are commanded to make Judges and Officers throughout their Tribes, Deut. xvii. 14, 15. When those

a fi

art some into the Land, &c. and Shalt fay, I will fet a King over me, like as all the Nations that are about me: Thou shalt in any wife set him a King over thee, whom the Lord thy God shall chuse: One from among ft thy Brethren shalt thou fet over thee; thou, may'ft not fet a Stranger over thee. So God did only reserve to himself the Nomination of their King; by which he defign'd to make his People more happy than they could expect by their own peculiar Choice: He knowing the Heart of Man, and the Corruption of their Nature, did nominate them who were most fit to govern his People; yet God did not require the fews to accept him for King whom he nominated, but left it to their own free Will, whether they would approve of him or not, is plain from the following Examples. Upon the Death of Saul, David was fet up by the Appointment of Almighty God, yet there was only the Tribe of Judah that followed David, and made him King; eleven Tribes followed Ishbosheth, Saul's Son, whom they made King; and tho' David had a long War against them, yet he doth not call them Rebels; neither do we find that God punished them, or fent any Judgment upon them for not accepting of David as King; and when Rechab and Banah had flain Ishbosheth, and brought his Head to David at Hebron, saying, Behold the Head of thine Enemy; yet David, instead of rewarding them, caused them to be flain for killing of Ishbosbeth, whom he calls a righteous Person, not a Rebel: After whose Death, all those Tribes came to David, and made a Compact with him for the Performance of fuch Conditions, which they thought necessary for the fecuring of their Liberty, before they made him King, 2 Sam. Chap. 11. 3, 4, 5.

102. The making of Solomon King by David his Father, was not thought sufficient without the People's Consent, else why did the People anoint Solomon, and make him King the second Time.

it

yf

è

è

1 n

ht

C,

ns

id

0 ;

be

r,

2,

4>

he

ay

ad,

the ut.

ges

how art

103. Saul, who left behind him many Children, yet not any of them succeeded him, except Ishbosteth, who was not his eldest Son, who was anointed King by Abner, the General Captain of that Nation, to whom eleven Tribes followed, until he was llain, and then they choic Davia. And Jonathan, one of Saul's Sons, so much praised in holy Scripture, being flain in War, his Son Mephibosheth did not succeed to the Crown, though by Succession he had a more plausible Right to it than David: God promised David, That his Seed should reign for ever after; yet we do not find this performed to any of his elder Sons, nor to any of their Off-spring, but only to Solomon, his youngest and tenth Son. After the Death of Solomon, Rehoboam, the lawful Son and Heir of King Solomon, came to Shichem, where all the People of Ifrael were affembled together for his Coronation and Admission to the Crown (for until that Time he was not accounted as true King) but refusing to ease them of some heavy Impositions which they had received from his Father, ten of the twelve Tribes refused to admit him their King, and chose Jeroboam his Servant, and made him their lawful King, and God allowed thereof; for when Rehoboam had prepared one hundred and fourfcore thousand chosen Men, to reduce those ten Tribes to his Obedience, God commanded him to defift, by his Prophet Shemajah, and so they did. Ammon being flain by his own Servants, the People of the Land flew them that had conspired against him, and made Josiah his Son, King in his Stead, which had been most impertinent, if he was King before they made him fo.

104. We read, Judges viii. 21, 22 23. that after Gideon had flain Zebah and Zalmunna with the Midianites, the Children of Ifrael faid unto Gideon, Rule thou over us, both thou and thy Sons, and thy Sons Sons also; for thou hast delivered us from the Hand of Midian. But he refusing their Offer, they afterwards made his Bastard Son Abimelech King, though he had seventy lawful begotten Sons.

105. Zimri, having flain Asa King of Judah, reigned in his Stead, but the Children of Ifrael hearing thereof, rejected him, and made Omri, the Captain of the Hoft, King of Ifrael, I Kings

xvi. 15. 16.

106. The Israelites met together, and chose Ehud, Gideon, Sampson, Jepthnah, and others, to be their Leaders, whom they judged fit to deliver them from their Enemies. By the fame Right they affembled at Mispeth, to make War against the Tribe of Benjamin, when Justice was denied to be done against those who had abused the Levite's Concubine. Jehu, and all the other Kings of Ifrael, whether good or bad, had no other Title than was conferred upon them by the People, which could not have given them any, unless they had met together; nor met together without the Confent, and against the Will of those that reigned, unless the Power had been in themselves.

107. The Kingdom of Edom appointed a Deputy to rule over them instead of a King, there being no King in Edom, I Kings xxii. 47. See Maccab. ix. 28, 29, 30. and xiii. 8, 9. and xiv. 41, to 49. by which it is further apparent, that their Kings and Governors were chosen by the People. These and the like Determinations of Nations about admitting, or refusing of Princes to reign, or not to reign over them, or depriving them because of their evil Government, when they are found incurable, provided fuch Nations acted for wife and good Ends, and were moved by just Causes, and sufficient Reasons, their Resolutions were not only allow'd, but approv'd of God, the Lover of Juftice, as corresponding with the righteous and gracious Defigns of his Providence, which always intends the Welfare and Happiness of Mankind.

ro8. If the Subject may in no Case resist, then there can be no Law, but the Will and Pleasure of the Prince: For whoever must be opposed in Nothing, may do every Thing; then all our Laws fignify no more than so many Cyphers: And what are the Law-Makers, but so many Fools or Mad-Men, who give themselves Trouble to no Purpose? For if the King is not obliged to govern by those Laws that they make, to what Purpose are the People to obey such Laws?

to take away my Money, my House, or my Land, I may defend them by the Law: But if he comes armed to take away our Liberty, Life, or Religion, which are ours by the Laws of God and Man, may we not secure them with a good Conscience?

and Privileges, against him who has no Authority to invade them: And this was the Case of Sampson, who made War upon the Philistines for burning his Wife and her Father; Sampson, who was but a private Person, knew he could have no other Kind of Justice against them, than what the Law of Nature gives every Man.

30

11.1

9W

gid

all.

111. The Work of all Magistrates is always and every where the same, even in the doing of Justice, and procuring the Welfare of those that create them. This we learn from common Sense. Plato, Aristotle, Cicero, and the best human Authors, lay it as an unmoveable Foundation, upon which they build their Arguments relating to Matters of that Nature. And the Apostle Paul declares, Rom xiii. That Rulers are not a Terror to good Works, but to Evil. Wilt thou then not be afraid of the Power? Do that which is good, and thou shalt have Praise of the same; for he is the Minister of God unto thee for good: But if thou do that which is Evil, be afraid; for he beareth not the Sword in vain; for he is Minister of God, a Revenger to execute Wrath upon him that doth evil: For this Cause pay you Tribute also. Rom. xiii. 6. And the Reason St Paul gives for praying for Kings, and all that are in Authority is, That we may live a quiet and peaceable Life, in all Godliness and Honesty, I Tim. ii. But if this be the Work of the Magistrate, and the glorious Name of God's Minister be given to him for the Performance of it, we may eafily fee to whom that Title belongs. His Children and Servants ye are, whose Work ye do. He therefore, and he only, is the Servant of God, who does the Work of God; who is a Terror to those that do evil, and a Praise to those that do well; who beareth the Sword for the Punishment of Wickedness and Vice; and so governs, that the People may live quietly in all Godliness and Honesty. The Order of his Institu-tion is invested, and the Institution vacated, if the Power be turned to the Praise of those who do Evil, and becomes a Terror to fuch as do well; and that none who live honeftly and justly can be quiet under it. If God be the Fountain of Justice, Mercy and Truth, and those his Servants who walk in them, no Exercise of Violence, Fraud, Cruelty, Pride, or Avarice, is patronized by him: And they who are the Authors of those Villanies, cannot but

but be the Ministers of him who fets himself up against God; because 'tis impossible that Truth and Falshood, Mercy, and Cruelty, Justice and the most violent Oppression, can proceed from the same Root. It was a Folly and a Lye in those Fews, to call themselves the Children of Abraham, who did not the Works of Abraham; and Christ declared them to be the Children of the Devil, whose Works they did, John viii. 39, 44. which Words proceeding from the eternal Truth, do as well shew to us, whose Child and Servant every Man is to be accounted, as to those who first heard them. All Princes therefore, that have Power, are not to be efteemed equally the Minifters of God. They that are fo, must receive their Dignity from a Title that is not common to all, even from a just Employment of their Power to the Encouragement of Virtue, and to the Discouragement of Vice. He that pretends to the Veneration and Obedience due to the Ministers of God, must by his Actions manifest that he is so. And, tho' I am un willing to advance a Proposition that may sound harshly to tender Ears, I am inclined believe, that the same Rule which obliges us to yield Obedience to the good Magistrate, who is the Minister of God, and affures us, that in obeying him, we obey God, does equally oblige us not to obey those who make themselves the Ministers of the Devil, lest in obeying them, we obey the Devil, whose Works they do. And the Apostle, commanding our Obedience to the Ministers of God for our Good, commands us, not to be obedient to the Minister of the Devil to our Hurt; for we cannot serve two Masters. By this it appears, that Kings, and the lowest Officer of Justice in the World, is the Minister of God for Good, as well as a King, or any other Magistrate; they are to be feared by those that do ill, and not by such as do well; for having no more Power than what the Law directs, they cannot depart from the Precepts of the Apostle: My own Actions therefore, or the Senfe of my own Guilt arising from them, is to be the Measure of my Fear of that Magistrate, who is the Minister of God, and not his Power.

Let every Soul be subject to the higher Powers, saith, He tells us not what those higher Powers are, nor who they are, for he never intended to overthrow all Governments, and the several Constitutions of Nations, and subject all to one Man's Will. Every good Emperor acknowledged, that the Laws of the Empire were above himself: And the same Principle and Notion of Government has obtained all along in civilized Nations. Herodotus, says Pindar, calls the Law King over all; Orpheus, in his Hymns, calls it, the King of Gods and Men: Because, says he, 'tis that that sits at the Helm of all buman Affairs. Plata, in his Book De Legibus, saith, That that sught to have the greatest Sway in the Commonwealth. In his Epistles he commends that Form of Government, in which the Law

1

i I i h

h

fe

(

p

A

0

is made Lord and Master, and no Scope given to any Man to tyrannize over the Laws. Aristotle is of the same Opinion in his Politicks, and so is Cicero in his Book de Legibus, That the Laws ought to govern the Magistrate, as they do the People. The Law therefore having always been accounted the highest Power on Earth, by the ludgment of the most Learned and Wife Men that ever were, and by the Constitution of the best ordered States; and it being very certain, that the Doctrine of the Gospel is neither contrary to Reason, nor the Laws of Nations, that Man is truly and properly fubject to the highest Powers, who obeys the Law and the Magistrates, so far as they govern according to Law. So that St. Paul does not only command the People, but Princes themselves, to be in Subjection, who are not above the Laws, but bound by them; for there is no Power but of God; that is, no Form. no lawful Constitution of any Government, but is by his Providence or Permission. The most ancient Laws that are known to us, were formerly ascribed to God, as their Author. For the Law, fays Cicero in his Politicks, is no other than a Rule of wellgrounded Reason, derived from God himself, enjoying whatever is just and right, and forbidding the contrary Princes of Israel, remove Violence and Spoil, and execute Judgment and Justice; take away your Exactions from my People, saith the Lord God. I challenge any Man to produce any Scripture that allows Governors, Magistrates, Kings or Princes, any absolute Authority; and where there is no absolute Authority, there can be no absolute Subjection due.

d

d eli-

ty

n-

br

C.

118

to rs,

to

of oes

he il,

ur

us,

for

nd

of 11;

ley

Ic-

m, Vi-

ds,

not

ded

ms,

W-

the nig

ing

bu-

that pil-

a w

is

114. We find in the Reign of Darius, the Laws were made by the People, by all the Prefidents of the Kingdoms, Governors, Princes, Counfellors and Captains, which when the King had figned, were irrevocable and unalterable, and not in the Power of their Kings to alter or dispense with; so that their Laws were superior to the King himself; and after the Law was made, the King had no Power to suspend the Execution on his great Favourite, his beloved Daniel, who was the greatest Man in the Kingdom, next the King; and though he fet his Heart to deliver him, and laboured to the going down of the Sun, between the Affection he had for the Prophet, and his Respect to the Law, yet he could not fave him: So Daniel was delivered up to the Lions, fo that the Superiority of the Law to Kingly Power, was acknowledged in the Median and Persian Monarchy; and King Darius, though as potent a Prince as most that ever reign'd, vailed his Crown to the Regency of the Law, and acknowledged himself unable to alter it, or to suspend the Execution thereof, Daniel vi. And thus the Limitation of Power, and the Superiority of Laws in Matters of Government, have an Original in the early Ages of the World.

115. The Doctrine of absolute Passive Obedience is inconsistent with the Goodness of God, and the Love he hath for Man; and is destructive of the End, Intent and Defign of God's Laws, which is Man's Happiness. For God, who is infinitely happy in himfelf, had no other Motive than the Happinels of Man in those Rules he has given him to walk by; and for that Reason has made it a Duty in him to help the Poor and Miserable, relieve the Oppressed and Distressed, and do all manner of Kindness and good Offices to one another. Can it then be prefumed that he requires Obedience to Tyrannical Power, which brings Poverty, Mifery, and Desolation on a Nation? If it be a Duty to relieve the Poor, it must be a Duty to hinder People from falling into that miserable Condition, which they cannot prevent, except they have a Right to oppose Arbitary Power; and if it be a Duty to promote the Publick Good, which they cannot do if they are obliged to fubmit to Tyrannical Government, it must be their Duty to op-There is no Duty that a Man owes to his Neighbour, or himself; but does oblige him to oppose Tyrannical Government, in doing thereof he gives that Honour and performs the Duty which he owes to his Maker, which cannot be more shewn than in imitating him, by promoting the Good and Happiness of his Fellow Creatures.

116. The Preaching or Promoting of Passive Obedience without Referve, is a much greater Crime than the encouraging of Rebelhon; because a civil War, though very sharp, cannot continue long, and a Nation may flourish and be happy again. But if once Arbitrary Government be introduced upon the Principles of Paffive Obedience, People's Miseries are endless, there is no Prospect or Hopes of Redress; every Age will add new Oppressions, and new Burdens to a People already exhausted. If he, by God's Command, was to be curfed that removed his Neighbour's Land-Mark, what Curses may they deserve, that make it their Business to preach or promote absolute Passive Obedience, which removes all the Bounds, Fences, and Securities that whole Nations have, not only for their Lands, but their Liberties and Lives, and proftrates them at the Feet of a fingle Person. Our first Reformers, and the Generality of Protestant and Popish Writers, were utterly unacquainted with this Doctrine, which can never relish well with free-born Subjects, nor has it any other Use than to encourage Kings to be Tyrants, and to render them odious, and their People miserable. And what sad and fatal Consequences always attend Tyranny, and the dreadful Effects of Arbitary Power, all Ages can attest.

were true, none but some sew Divines of the Church of England should in all the World, never find in the Scriptures, in the Fathers, in Reason, in the Laws, those Notions of absolute Power and absolute Obedience, or Non-Resistance, which those Divines

t

ti

tl

b fe

D

w ar

to

m all

th

of

be tei

CI

be

m

M

pe

be

fla

the

La

Au

tha

and

the

Uſ

ma

He

Usi

tha

to t ior

W.

SI

TS,

B:LI

never come into their Minds, to compare their Opinions with the Opinions of the Doctors of the foregoing Age, whose Hype-thesis is so contrary to those they have endeavoured to obtrude these Sixty Years last past upon us? Is it possible they should not blush at the terrible Consequences of this Doctrine, both to our Kings and the whole Kingdom, which it hath brought upon us for many Years past, which we feel to this Day.

maintain Maxims so pernicious to Human Society; sor if this Doctrine had always obtained, and proselyted all Men to its Belief, we, and all Europe, should have been miserable under Tyranny and Oppression to this Day. At this Rate a King needs no Army to rain and enslave his People; he alone, with a few rascally Slaves.

might rob them of their Lives and Fortunes.

S

,

e

0 or

t, ty

m

113 ut

el-

ue

ce

af-

or ew m-

nd-

ess

ves

ve,

rol-

ers,

erly

well

ou-

heir

vays

, all

rine

Fa-

wer

vines ught all Ages, have reckoned it not only lawful for the People, under the most absolute Governments, to do themselves Justice, in Case of Oppression, but have thought the doing of it a Duty incumbent on them, and which they owed to themselves and their Posterity; and the chief Instruments of the great Revolutions or Changes that have happened in the World, from Slavery to Liberty, have always been accounted as Heroes, sent by God Almighty, from time to time, for the Redemption of Man from Misery in this World; they were accordingly honoured and respected whilst they lived, and their Memories have been, and will be held in Veneration by all Posterity.

120. The Doctrine of Absolute Passive Obedience is a treasonable, flavish, and pernicious Doctrine, by difarming the People of all their civil Rights, and taking away Self Defence, which is the Law of God and Nature, and investing the King with absolute Authority, by making all the Revolutions and Changes of Kings, that have been in England, damnable Rebellions and Usurpations, and all our Kings and Queens Usurpers that have proceeded from the Loins of those Kings; it makes all the Family of the Stuarts Usurpers, as proceeding from the Loins of Henry VII. who was made King by Virtue of an Act of Parliament, (whilft the next Heir was living) fo that her late most excellent Majesty was an Usurper, according to this Doctrine, as being a Stuart, and all that pretend to the Crown of England, have no Right according this Doctrine; it makes the late Revolution a damnable Rebela 3 ion and Usurpation, and the Queen herself a Rebel and Usurper: Without that Revolution her late Majesty had never been Queen: s not this a Doctrine to be abhorred?

121. Now what say ye for yourselves, all ye Patrons, Preachits, and surious Maintainers of the slavish Doctrine of absolute to Possive Obedience, to the Will and Pleasure of the Prince, that a selfbill of Indictment for High Treason should not be preserved against you, for making all our Revolution Kings, Usurpers and Rebels; and all that have proceeded from them Usurpers, (which yet never failed of a constant Succession) by denying the Power of the People, who made those Revolutions and Changes of Government, and who have made and confirmed the late Revolutions in all the succeeding Parliaments? This Revolution King, with the Lords and Commons in Parliament assembled, who did alter the Succession from the House of Savoy to the House of Hanover, were the whole Legislative Authority of the Nation: Deny this if you dare: Or, that the late Queen, with the Lords and Commons in Parliament assembled, could not alter the Succession and Course of Defect thereof? There's Vox Populi again; the whole People of England in Epitome.

122. The Doctrine of absolute Passive Obedience is a treasonable Doctrine against Civil Society, by encouraging Rebellion, Usurpation and Tyranny. For suppose that any one of our Generals, &c. should infinuate to the Soldiers that the Government was not rightly managed, nor Justice and Equity truly performed; and by great Promises of Money and Preferment to the Officers and Soldiers, should get into the Throne by their Assistance, (which God forbid) fuch Refistance would (I verily believe) be a damnable Rebellion. But when in the Throne, he would be God's Vicegerent, ordained of God, and not to be refifted upon Pain of Damnation, according to the Doctrine of absolute Passive Obedience. So that if any Tyrant or Usurper should get into the Throne, St. Paul, as they scandalously expound him, hath tied up your Hands; you must be Passive. The People have no Power, it is all in the Magistrate, though they have Power and Authority to chuse this Magistrate; yet that very Minute he is chosen, their Power and Authority vanisheth; and if he turn never so great a Tyrant, they have nothing but Prayers and Tears to help them; for now he hath God's Authority and Power, (though he has neither his Patent or Warrant to shew for it either to ruin or make you happy; tis no Matter for your Laws, they are but dead Letters; his Will and Pleasure is above them, and if he be a Terror to good Works, and a Rewarder of Evil, and acts diametrically contrary to the Nature and Defign of his Office, both from God and Man, and should ravish, and cause to be ravished, your Wives and Daughters before your Faces, and rob, burn, and destroy all before him; notwithstanding all this, he is still God's Vicegerent, God's Magistrate, and not to be refisted, &c. And who dare fay unto him, What doft thou? Now, ye sworn Enemies to Church and State, what fay you for yourselves, that a second Bill of Indictment of High Treason should not be preferred against you, for encouraging of Rebellion, Usurpation and Tyranny, by teaching the Doctrine of absolute Passive Obedience? what say you for yourselves? are you guilty or not guilty? hold up your Hands. If thou wilt be

h tried by the whole Legislative Authority of the Nation, they must condemn you or themselves.

e

,

t

d

1-

e.

t.

s;

ne

is

nd

y

he

2-

ill

23, 10

d

h-

n;

2-m, te,

gh

of ne

are

be

ied

123. Where was the Doctrine of absolute Passive Obedience and Levalty, when the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, Gentlemen and Commonalty invited the Prince of Orange to come with arm'd Forces, to oblige the Lord's Anointed, God's Vicegerent, once their lawful Sovereign, (to whom they had fworn Allegiance, and had before promised to stand by him with their Lives and Fortunes, in all their Addresses to him, after his coming to the Throne) to oblige him, I fay, to revoke what he had done amis, and to bind him in Chains, and his Nobles in Fetters of Iron, that he should not govern according to his Will and Pleasure, but according to Law, their Will and Pleasure; and when the Bishops refused to disown, to King James, their inviting over the Prince, or to fubscribe an Abhorrence of the Invitation, by which it appears that they did invite him over, or allow'd of Refistance when their Church was in Danger? And where was that Doctrine, when the Nobility, Gentry, and Commonalty rose to join the Prince of Orange, after he was landed? And when the Bishops and Noblemen met at Guildhall, and defired the Prince to take upon him the Administration of the Government, and when the Convention, with the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, gave the Crown and Dignity to the Prince and Princess of Orange! and when the Parliament made War against the late King James in Ireland, did they not kill him and his Adherents as much as in them lay, at the Battle of the Boyne, &c? was that according to the Doctrine of Paffive Obedience?

124. Where was Passive Obedience on the Third of October, 1688, when the Archbithop of Canterbury, Bishops of Lendon, Winchester, Asaph, Ely, Chichester, Rochester, Bath and Wells, and Peterborough, all in a Body, waited upon the King, and the Archbishop made a Speech to him, and afterwards read and delivered to him Ten Articles, or Proposals of their Advice for the better redressing of the Abuses in his Government, the Substance of which was very near the same with that of the Prince of Orange's Declaration, except in one or two Particulars! The Bishop of Rothester observes, that they were drawn at Lambeth, on the first of October, the very same Day that the Prince's Declaration was signed in Holland, being the Tenth N. S. which was our First O. S.

2 Parcel of the Prince of Orange's Declarations being intercepted in London, and upon reading that Expression in it, That the Prince was most earnestly invited bit her by divers of the Lords, both Spiritual and Temporal, and others, the King sent for some of the Bishops again, and required of them a Paper under their Hands in Abhorrence of the Prince of Orange's intended Invasion by such a Day, which Abhorrence was defigned to have been

H

th

N

N

an

try

W

in fei

M

th

20 me

C

P an

of

W

ci

N

the

A

Pr

ber

W

th

by

of

O.F

m

W

D

L

to 21

T

Bo

bo M foi

ai

bi

H

vo

tacked to a Proclamation then in the Press for suppressing the Prince's Declaration? The Bishops of Canterbury, London, Peterborough, and Rochester, (on whom this Storm only sell) resused to do it, upon which his Majesty was very much incensed against them, and parted from them with Indignation. And thereupon the Jesuited Party at Court were so violently enraged, that, as we are credibly informed (saith the Bishop of Rochester) one of the Chief advised in a Heat, they should all be imprisoned, and the Truth extorted from them by Violence.

127. Where was the Doctrine of absolute Passive Obedience and Loyalty, when on the fifth of November 1688, the Prince landed, and on the twelfth, when the Lord Cornbury, with his Royal Regiment of Dragoons, and the Duke of St. Alban's Regiment of Horse, commanded by Colonel Langston, went over to the Prince? On the 15th of November, the Gentry of Somersetsbire and Dor. setshire waited on the Prince at Exeter, who spoke to them as follows: Though we know not all your Persons, yet we have a Catalogue of your Names, and remember the Character of your Worth and Interest in your Country. You see we are come according to your Invitation, and our Promise. Our Duty to God obliges us to protect the Protestant Religion, and our Love to Mankind, your Liberties and Properties; concluding, let the World now judge, if our Pretensions are not just, generous, fincere, and above Price, since we might have had even a Bridge of Gold to return back; but it is our Principle and Resolution, rather to die in a good Cause, than live in a bad one; well knowing that Virtue and true Honour is its own Reward, and the Happiness of Mankind our great and only Defign. On the 16th the Lord Delamere affembled fifty Horsemen, and marched to Manchester, and the next Day to Bowden-Downs, his Forces being encreased to One hundred and fifty; he declared his Defign was to join the Prince of Orange, and this small Party of Men, by Degrees, drew in the Earl of Devonshire, Earl of Stamford, Earl of Danby, Sir Scroop How, Sir Will. Ruffel, &c. and all the North.

five Obedience and Loyalty, when Sancroft, Archbishop of Canterbury, (who was the first figned the Prince of Orange's Invitation to the City) went from Guildhall, and demanded the Keys of the Tower of Sir Bevil Skelton, King James's Lieutenant, in the Name of the Lord Mayor, and the Lords Spiritual and Temporal then assembled at Guildhall, which the Lieutenant delivered to him, and he delivered the same, as by Order from the Lords, &c. to the Lord Lucas, who took immediate Possession thereof, which would have been as real Acts of Lasa Majestatis, if King James had not forseited the Duty and Obedience of his Subjects, as if he had stabbed him to the Heart?

128. And where was that Doctrine, when Prince George of Denmark, the Duke of Grafton, Duke of Ormond, Lord Churchill

the

fed

nft

the

are rief

ex-

and

ed,

Re-

of ce?

or-

as

carth

our est

ties

re-

we

is ban

its

De-

en,

ms,

red

rty

of

&c.

af.

er-

ion

the

the oral

to

&c.

mes

he

of

bill

the late Duke of Marlborough, and many others of the Protestant Nobility, went over to the Prince of Orange at Sherborn Castle? November the 29th, Bristol was seized by the Earl of Shrewshury, and Sir John Guile; the Lord Lovelace was delivered by the Gentry of Gloucestershire, out of the Castle of Gloucester, where he was a Prisoner; Newcastle received the Lord Lomley; York was in the Hands of the associated Lords; and the Garrison of Hull seized the Lord Langdale, their Governor, a Papist, and the Lord Montgomery, and disarm'd some Popish Forces newly sent thither.

129. Where was the Doctrine of absolute Passive Obedience and Loyalty, when Prince George of Denmark, the Duke of Ormond, Lord Mordaunt, Earl of Macclesfield, Lord Wiltsbire, Lord Cornbury, Lord Colchester, and several other Lords; Sir William Portman, Sir Rowland Gwyn, Col. Sidney, and many other Knts. and Gentlemen rode into the City of Salisbury, with the Prince of Orange and his Army, on the fourth of December? And where was that Doctrine, when the Princess Anne, the late most gracicus and good Queen, with the Lady Churchill, late Dutchess of Marlborough, Lady Berkley, and the Bishop of London, went to the North, to those Forces then in Arms for the Prince of Orange? And on December the 5th, when the Earl of Oxford came to the Prince of Orange at Salisbury? And the fame Day the Lord Herbert of Cherbury, Sir Edward Harley, and most of the Gentry of Worcestershire and Herefordshire met at Worcester, and declared for the Prince of Orange; Ludlow Castle was taken for the Prince by the Lord Herbert and Sir Walter Blount, and the Popish Sheriff of Worcester secured in it by that Peer. The pretended Prince of Wales was fent to Portsmouth, with Orders to the Lord Dartmouth, to fend him under a Convoy, with his Nurse, into France, which he refufing, he was brought back to London on the 8th of December 11, King James withdrew himself from December. London, was taken at Feversham the 12th; the 16th he returned to Whitehall, and put out an Order of Council, against all riotous and tumultuous Meetings and Disorders, &c. December 11, about Three in the Morning, the King went to Gravefend in a small Boat. About Ten o'Clock, the Lords Spiritual and Temporal as bout Town, came to Guildhall, London, and fending for the Lord Mayor and Aldermen, made the following Declaration, viz.

WE doubt not but the World believes, that in this great and dangerous Conjuncture, we are heartily and zealously concerned for the Protestant Religion, the Laws of the Land, and the Liberties and Properties of the Subject. And his Majesty having withdrawn himself, We do therefore unanimously resolve to apply ourselves to his Highness the Prince of Orange, &c.

And we do hereby declare, That we will, with our utmost Endeaail

all Speed; wherein our Laws, our Liberties and Properties may be secured, the Church of England in particular, with a due Liberty to Protestant Dissenters, and in general, the Protestant Religion and Interest over the whole World, may be supported and encouraged, to the Glory of God, the Happiness of the established Government in these Kingdoms, and the Advantage of all Princes and States in Christendom, that may be herein concerned. In the mean Time we will endeavour to preserve, as much as in us lies, the Peace and Security of these great and populous Cities of London and Westminster, and the Parts adjacent, by taking Care to disarm all Papists, and secure all Jesuits, and Roman Priests, who are in and about the same. And if there be any thing more to be performed by us, for promoting his Highness's generous Intentions for the Publick Good, we shall be ready to do it as Occasion requires.

Signed, W. Cant. T. Eber. Pembrook, Dorfet, Mulgrave, Thanet, Carlifle, Graven, Aylesbury, Burlington, Suffex, Berkley, Rochester, Newport, Weymouth, P. Winchester, W. Asaph, F. Ely, Tho. Roffen, Tho. Peterborough, P. Wharton, North and Grey, Chandois, Montague, T. Jermyn, Vaughton, Cherbury, Culpeper, Crew, Osulfton.

And they ordered the Earl of Pembroke, the Lord Viscount Weymouth, the Bishop of Ely, and the Lord Culpeper, forthwith to attend his Highness, the Prince of Orange, with the said Declaration, and at the same Time to acquain his Highness with what we have further done at this Meeting. Dated at Guildhall the 11th of December, 1688 but not according to the Doctrine of absolute Passive Obedience to Typanny.

130. The same Day the Lieutenancy of London, figned the following Address to the Prince of Orange, at Guildhall, and sent it by Sir Rob. Clayton, Sir Will. Russell, Sir Bozil Firebrace, and Charles Duncomb, Esq. viz.

May it please your Highness,

WE can never sufficiently express the deep Sense we have conceived, and shall ever retain in our Hearts, that your Highness has exposed your Person to so many Dangers, by Sea and Land, for the Presentation of the Protestant Religion, and the Laws and Liberties of this Kingdom, without which unparalelled Undertaking we must probably have suffered all the Miseries that Popery and Slavery could have brought upon us. We have been greatly concerned, that before this time we had not any sassanable Opportunity to give your Highness, and the World, a real Testimony, that it has been our sirm Resolution to venture all that is dear to us, to attain those glarious Ends which your Highness bas proposed, for restoring and settling these distrassed Nations. We therefore, now unanimously present to your Highness, our just and due Acknowledgements for that happy Relief you have brought to us: And, that we may not be wanting at this present Conjuncture.

We have put ourselves into such a Posture, that by the Blessing of God we may be capable to prevent all ill Designs, and to preserve this City in Peace and Safety, 'till your Highness will please to repair to this City, with what convenient Speed you can, for the perfecting the great Work, which your Highness has so happily begun, to the general Joy and Satisfaction of us all.

Aldermen, and Commons of this City of London, in Common-Council affembled, agreed on, and figured an Address to the Prince of Orange, imploring his Protestion, and humbly beseating him to repair to this City, where his Highness should be received with universal Joy and Satisfaction. All which Addresses were presented to his Highness the Prince of Orange, by the Persons appointed the 14th of December at Henly upon Thames; but not according to Dr. Hicks, Dr. Whalton, Dr. Atterbury, Dr. Sacheverell's, &c. unconditionate Obedience.

132. On the rath of December, the Privy Council and Peers, met again at the Council Chamber at White-Hall, and made an Order, That all Irish Officers and Soldiers should deliver up their Arms to some of the Officers of the Ordnance, to be deposited in the Tower of London. Signed by Thomas Ebor, Hallif ax, Dorses, Carliste, Craven, Northingham, Rechefter, N. Duresme, P. Winchefter, North and Grey, J. Trever, J. Fitus.

7

y

d

.6

id

ly

×,

7.

n.

ıt

th

e-

Ш

ne.

1-it

nd

d, x-

20

of.

20

his

nd

1420

a-

eht

we

mouth and Tilbury, owere in the Prince's Hands. The same Day the Duke of Graft n, by an Order from the Lords of the Council, march'd through the Strand, &c. at the Head of a Foot Regiment of Guards, to take the Fort of Tilbury out of the Hands of King James's Irish Soldiers. The 17th, King James discharged Leybourn, a Popish Bishop, out of Newgate. The 18th, the King went to Rochester, and the same Day the Prince of Orange came to St. James's, attended by a great Number of Nobility and Gentry. And on the same Day, the Common-Gouncil of the City passed an Order, That all the Aldermen, and their Common Council Men of each Ward should wait upon his High ness, and congratulate him upon his Arrival to the City; and on the 20th they went to St. James's, where Sir George Treby, their Recorder, made the soldowing Speech in their Names, viz.

May it please your Highness,

134. THE Lord Mayor being disabled by Sickness, your Highness is attended by the Aldermen and Commons of the eapital City of this Kingdom, deputed to congratulate your Highness upon this great and glorious Occasion.

In which, labouring for Words, we cannot but come short in Expression: Reviewing our late Danger, we remember our Church and State over-run by Popery and Arbitrary Power, and brought to the Point

Point of Destruction, by the Conduct of Men (that were our true Invaders) that broke the sacred Fences of our Laws (which was worst) the very Constitution of our Legislature.

So that there were no Remedy but the last.

The only Person under Heaven, that could apply this Remedy, was your Highness.

You are of a Nation, whose Alliance, in all Times, has been agreeable and prosperous to us

You are of a Family most illustrious Benefactors to Mankind; to bave a Title of a Sovereign Prince, Stadt-holder, and to have worn the Imperial Crown, are amongst their lesser Dignities.

They have long enjoy'd a Dignity singular and transcendant, viz.

vinduate his Cause against the greatest Oppressions.

To this divine Commission, our Nobles, our Gentry, and among them our brave English Soldiers, render themselves and their Arms upon your appearing. Great Sir,

When we look back to the last Month, and contemplate the Swiftness and Fulness of our present Deliverance, astonished, we think it miraculous.

Your Highness, led by the Hand of Heaven, and call'd by the Vaice of the People, has preserved our dearest Interests.

The Protestant Religion, which is primitive Christianity, restor'd our Laws, which are our ancient Title, to our Lives, Liberties, and Estates, and without which this World were a Wilderness.

But what Retribution can we make to your Highness? Our Thoughts are full charg'd with Gratitude.

Your Highness has a lasting Monument in the Hearts, in the Prayers, in the Praises of all good Men among st us. .

And late Posterity will celebrate your ever glorious Name, 'till Time shall be no more.

at St. James's, who all (except two) subscribed a Paper in the Nature of an Association: After which his Highness made a short Speech to them.

at Westminster, in the House of Lords, and appointed Francis Gwyn, Esq; to fign such Orders as should be from Time to Time.

by them made, which was thus Signed by Thomas Ebor, Norfolk, Somerset, Grafton, Ormond, Beaufort, Northumberland, Hallifax, Oxford, Kent, Bedford, Pembroke, Dorset, Devonsbire, Bolingbrook, Manchester, Rivers, Stamford, Thanet, Scarsale, Clarendon, Burlington, Sussex, Macclessield, Radnor, Berkley, Nottingham, Rochester, Fauconberg, Mordaunt, Newport, Weymouth, Hatton, W. Asaph, F. Ely, La. Ware, R. Eure, P. Wharton, Paget, North and Grey, Chandois, Montague, Grey, Maynard, nard, T. Jermyn, Vaughan, Carbery, T. Culpepper, Lucas, Delamere, Crew, Lumley, Cartaret, Ofulfton.

137. The 23d, King James withdrew himself from Rochester, and went to Dover, and embark'd in a Vessel there from France.

138. The aforegoing Peers being affembled the 25th of December in the House of Lords, figned and presented to his Highness this Address.

WE the Lords Spiritual and Temporal assembled in this Conjuncture, do desire your Highness to take upon you the Administration of the publick Affairs, both Civil and Military; and the Disposal of the publick Revenue, for the Preservation of our Religion, Rights, Laws, Liberties, and Properties, and of the Peace of the Nation, 'till the Meeting of the Convention, Jan. 22.

And the Lords, &c. did humbly desire his Highness to cause Letters to be written, subscribed by himself to all the Lords, being Protestants, and all the Counties, &c. to send Members to the Convention on Fan. 22.

139. On the 19th of January following about thirty Lords, and eighty Gentlemen of Scotland, fign'd a Paper to the same Purpose, which was delivered to his Highness in their Presence, by the Duke of Hamilton, their Prefident.

1

13

0 :

7

5

t ie

do

id.

er

be.

ill

1

SELT

ct

he:

a

r.bei

ed .

cis

me

rt,

05-iet,

ior,

ort,

ay-

nd,

P.

140. On Jan. 22, 1689, the Convention being met according to his Highness's Order, they order'd, That the Thanks of both Houses should be returned to his Highness in the Behalf of the whole Nation, for his Highness's happy Deliverance of this Kingdom from Popery, Slavery, and despotick Power, and for the P. eservation of the Protestant Religion, and the Laws, Rights, and Privileges, and Customs of our Land, &c. and both Houses ordered the 31st of January for a Day of publick Thanksgiving in London and West-minster, and within ten Miles Distance for that great Deliverance; and on the 14th of February following, throughout the whole Kingdom. But not according to the Doctrine of absolute Passive-Obedience

141. On the 28th of January the Convention passed this Vote, Resolved, That King James the Second having endeavoured to subvert the Constitution of this Kingdom, by breaking the original Contract between King and People, and, by the Advice of Jesuits, and other wicked Persons, having violated the fundamental Laws, and baving withdrawn himself out of this Kingdom, bath abdicated the Government, and that the Throne is thereby become vacant. Was this according to the Doctrine of Non-Refistance?

142. On the 6th of February the Lords affented to the faid Vote.

143 The Word Abdicated relates to all the Clauses aforegoing, as well as to his deserting the Kingdom, or else they would have been wholly in vain; the Meaning of that Word is, that King

King James, by violating the Original Contract, and by endeavouring to subvert the fundamental Constitution, and by refusing to restore it to its former Condition (all which was express'd by his withdrawing himself out of the Kingdom) did abditate the Government; that is, by refusing to govern us according to that Law by which he held the Crown, he did implicitly renounce his Title to it; for 'tis a Right inherent and inseparable from all Nations, to have the same Power of making Laws for their own Preservation and better Government, that their Ancestors had.

144. And on the 12th, the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, did refolve, That William and Mary, Prince and Princess of Orange, be declared King and Queen of England, &c.

tion to be published, wherein they say, That the Prince and Princess of Orange having accepted of the Crown according to their Desire: We therefore the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, together with the Lord Mayor and Citizens of London, and others of the Commons of this Realm, do with full Consent publish and proclaim William and Mary, Prince and Princess of Orange, to be King and Queen of England, &c. But not according to the Doctrine of absolute Passive-Obedience. By this Revolution the Body of the People of England are restored to their ancient Right, and the Government re-established upon its primitive and original Foundation, and the pretended divine Right of Succession is now vanished.

146. In the Declaration of the Nobility and Gentry, and Commonalty, affembled at Nottingham, to affift the Prince of Orange, We hope (1ay they) all good Protestant Subjects will, with their Lives and Fortunes, be affiftant to us, and not to be bugbear'd with the opprobrious Terms of Rebels, by which they would fright us, to bocome perfect Slaves to their tyrannical Infolences and Unfurpations: For we affure ourselves, that no rational and unbias'd Person will judge it Rebellion, to defend our Laws and Religion, which all our Princes have feworn to at their Coronation We own it Rebellion to refift a King that governs by Law, but he was always accounted a Tyrant that made his Will the Law, and to refift fuch a one, we justly esteem Rebellion but a necessary Defence: And in this Consideration we doubt not of all honest Mens Assistance, and humbly hope for, and implore the great God's Protestion, that turneth the Hearts of bis People, and pleafeth him best; it having been observed, that People can never be of one Mind, without his Inspiration, which bath in all Ages confirmed that Observation, Vox Populi eft Vox Dei.

I,

.

7

U

p

G

d

ray. Now, according to the Doctrine of Passive Obedience, without Reserve, as has been preached up, all those Bishops, Clergy, Nobility, Gentlemen and Commonalty, who had a Hand in the late Revolution, and held that Doctrine, and now hold the same Doctrine, may expect a double Portion of St. Paul's Damnation, for rebelling against their own Doctrine.

trine of Kings being Jure Divino was first preached, which was never before heard of in all the Eastern Tyrannies; and in King Charles the First's Time, when Popish and French Councils found Admission at Court, then arose the Doctrine of Passive Obedience without Reserve. There can be no Proofs made of a divine Appointment of Kings, or of any other Governors, or Forms of Government, (so as to be a Rule for any People or Nation to go by) or that all the Revolutions and Accidents that have happen'd in the World were by divine Appointment; which to assert, is to make God the Author, or Approver of all the Tyranny, Rapine, Murder, and Desolation which have happened in the World, which is a damnable Sin to affert.

it

e

11 n

bi

id

1-

75

:

4-

be

m

nd

of

he

he

n-

72-ind

of ith

ug-

ght

ba-

fon

all

lion

da

ftly

74-

for,

5 9

Pear

b in ned,

ops,

had

and

tion

of

1 49. Where was the nonfenfical flavish Doctrine of Passive-Obedience to Tyranny when Elisha prayed for Blindness to come upon those who were fent by the King of Syria to fetch him? And when he commanded the Door to be shut, and the Messenger to be held fast, who was fent for his Head by the King of Ifrael? And when Azariah, with fourscore valiant Priests, thrust Uzziah, their lawful King, out of the Temple for his Idolatry? And when Elijah destroyed the two Captains with Fire from Heaven, with the hundred Men under their Command, who were fent at twice by King Ahaziah to fetch him? And when the Children of Ifrael flew Amaziah their lawful King, for his Idolatry, without any Appointment in Scripture, or, Prophecy of his Downfal? And yet this is no where call'd Rebellion, neither were they punished by his Son, who was made King in his Father's flead. And when Matthias, and his Friends pulled down the Altars which were adapted to Idols? I Maccab. ii. 25, 45. And when the Edomites revolted from Jehoram, and made themselves a King? And Libna did also revolt because of his evil Government, 2 Chron. xxi. without any Appointment or foretelling of their Revolt by God in Scripture, or being called Rebels. And when Soul's Subjects fwore that Soul should not kill fonathan, and they rescued him that he died not, I Sam. xiv. 45. And though the People finned grievously in asking a King, yet God affented to their Demand, and no Prince was ever more folemply inftituted than Saul. The People chose him by Lot from amongst all the Tribes, and he was placed in the Throne by the general Confent of the whole Nation: But he turning his lawful Power into Tyranny, disobeying the Word of the Prophet, flaying the Priests, sparing the Amakelites, and oppressing the Innocent, overthrew his own Right, and God declared the Kingdom, which had been given him under a conditional Promile of Perpetuity, to be entirely abrogated. did not only give a Right to the whole People of opposing him, 10 but but to every particular Man, and upon this Account David did not only fly from his Fury, but refifted it, by making himself Head of all the discontented Persons that would follow him: He had at first Four, and afterwards Six Hundred Men; be kept these in Arms against Saul, and lived upon the Country, and resolved to destroy Nahash with all his House, only for refusing to send Provisions for his Men; and finding himself weak and unsafe, he went to Achifb the Philistine, and offered his Service against Israel. This was never reputed a Sin in David, or in those that followed him, except by the wicked Court Flatterer, Doeg the Edomite, and the drunken Fool Nabal, who is faid to be a Man of Belief. David, by entertaining and arming as many as came to him, even to Six Hundred Men, sufficiently shewed his Intention rather to refift than to fly: And no other Reason can be given why he did not further purfue that Intention, than that he had not Power enough, is plain, by his going to Keileh, and defining their Affistance; and if the Men of Keilab would have affisted him, and been true to him, he would have fought Saul, and his Army, else why did he enquire of the Lord, whether the Men of Keilah would deliver him up into the Hands of Saul and upon the Lord's answering, they would deliver him up, he and his Men departed the City, I Sam xxiii. David had no other Right of making War against Ibbosbeth, Saul's Son, than against Saul; unless the Tribe of Judah had made him King. But as David did refift the Authority of Ishbosheth, without assuming the Power of a King, though defign'd by God, and anointed by the Prophet, 'till he was made King of Judab by that Tribe; or arrogating to himself a Power over the other Tribes, 'till he was made King by them, and had entered into a Covenant with them; 'ris much more certain that the Persons and the pretended Authority of tyrannical Kings, who can have no Title to the Privileges which were due to Saul by Virtue of his Inftitution, may be justly refisted. But if Saul, who was made King by the whole People, and anointed by the Command of God. might be refisted when he departed from the Law of his Instifution, it cannot be doubted that any other for the like Reason may not be refifted. If Refistance was unlawful, and a Sin, furely David, a Man after God's own Heart, would have known if; and he would not have involved the Six Hundred Men that came to his Affiftance, in the Sin of Rebellion, but wou'd have told them the Prince was not to be refifted, though never fo great a Tyrant. According to the pretended Doctrine of Jure Divino, the vilest Slave in Ifrael had become the Lord's Anointed, if he could have kill'd David, Solomon, &c. and found Villains to place him in the Throne.

Obedience when the primitive Christians called in Constanting the Great, to aid and affilt them against the Tyranny and Persecution of Maxentius and Maximinius, with Force of Arms, with which they conquer'd those Persecutors in several Battles fought against them? And when the primitive Christians refisted Lucinius their Emperor, for perfecuting them contrary to Law; and Constantine the Great joined with them; who held it his Duty, faith Eusebius to deliver an infinite Number of People, by cutting off a few wicked ones, as the Posts and Plagues of the Times? And when the primilive Christians under the King of Persia, relisted him for perfecuting them, and were affitted by Theodofius the Roman Emperor, who told the King of Persia, He was ready to defend them, and no ways to fee them fuffer for Religion? And when the Christians of Armenia the Greater, made a League with the Romans for the securing of their Persons and Religion against the Persians, under whom they lived? And when the Novations, affilted by the Orthodox, refifted and beat the Macedonians, though they were affifted by Constantius the Emperor with four thousand Men to drive them from Paphlegonia? And when the primitive Christians destroyed Julian's idolatrous Temple? And when the Lutheran Churches defended themselves against the Emperor Charles the Fifth? And when the Protestants of Austria took up Arms, Anno 1608. against Matthias King of Hungary, for denymg them the free Exercise of their Religion?

Paffive-Obedience, when the whole Church of England, in several Convocations, justified the Protestants in the relisting of their tyran nical Princes, and not only maintained in Words, the Justice of their Resistance, but which is more, they laid down their Purses to help them; and charged themselves deeply with Taxes, in Consideration of Queen Elizabeth's great Charges and Expences in affishing them: As you may see in the Clergy's Subsidy

Act in that Reign.

d

d

n

0 .

ie.

A

d

M.

1, m n

p ed

118 en

po

118 ht

ul,

nd

rer

0.

'Or

728 ith

rea

tle

lti-

ng

,bo

Ai-

on

in,

WB

hat.

eat

ino,

be.

to.

ve-

the

ion

Of

152. Quinto Elizabetha, Cap. 24. Among other Confideranons, for which the Clergy give their Subfidy of Six Shillings in the Pound, they have these Words; And finally, pondering the inestimable Charges sustained by your Highness, as well of late Days in reducing the Realm of Scotland to Unity and Concord, as also in procuring as much as in your Highness lieth, by all Kind of godly and prudent Means, the abating of all Hostil ty and Perfecuion within the Realm of France, practifed and used against the Proefeffors of God's holy Gofpel, and true Religion. The hift thing in this Passage is the Queen's Assistance of the Stotch in their Reormation, wherein they were opposed by the Queen of Scott, which is set down at large in our Chronicles, Stow, p. 640. The Parliament in their Subfidy Act, at the fame Time, Cop. 27. call this Affiftance, "The Princely and upright Preserva-"tion of the Liberty of the next Realm and Nation of Scot-" land from imminent Captivity and Defolation. The other they call'd, " The godly and prudent Means for abating Hol-46 tility 650. informs us that those Means were the Forces sent under Dudley, Earl of Warwick, to Newhaven, to affist the French Protestants who were then in Arms. This Affistance of the Queen, Parliament and Clergy, was a damnable Sin, according to the Doctrine of absolute passive and unconditionated Obedience, for they that are aiding and assisting to Rebels, are as bad as Rebels themselves: But all the Bishops, and Clergy in Convocation, held no such Doctrine in those Days; for they call that Assistance, the Use of godly and prudent Means to abate Hostility and Persecution, practised and used against the Professors of God's holy Gospel and true Religion.

in Confideration of her Majesty's Charges, "in the provident and needful Prevention of such intended Attempts, as tend to the Extirpation of the fincere Prosession of the Gospel, both here and elsewhere." The Parliament's Subsidy Act at the same Time declares these Reasons for their Tax, Cap. 13. Besides the great and perpetual Honour which it hath pleased God to give your Majesty Abroad, in making you the principal Support of just and religious Causes against Usurpers——Besides the great Succours in France and Flanders, which we do conceive to be most honourable in Regard of the ancient Leagues, the Justice and Equity of their Causes. And in the 39th Eliz. Cap. 27, they say, This Land is become, since your Majesty's happy Day, both a Port and Haven of Resuge, for distressed States and Kingdoms, and a Rock and Butwark of Opposition against the Tyrannies and ambitious Attempts of mighty and usurping Potentates.

154. 43 Eliz. Cap. 17. The Clergy in their Subfidy Act fay, For who bath, or should have a livelier Sense, or better Remembrance of your Majesty's princely Courage and Constancy in advanceing and protecting the free Profession of the Gospel, within and without your Majesty's Dominions, than your Clergy. King Charles the First, and the Bishops and Clergy of England, assisted the Protestants of France? So that if the Scotch, French and Dutch Protestants were doomed Rebels in their Resistance of their lawful Sovereigns, then the Church and Parliament of England, quite through Queen Elizobeth's Reign, and in King Charles the First's Reign, by their affifting of them, involved themselves in the same Guilt; for it is utterly unlawful, and a horrid Sin to affift Subjects in the Violation of their Duty and Allegiance, and to aid them in refisting the Ordinance of God. But this being too sbfurd to be believed of Confessors, and Men who had hazarded their Lives for the Protestant Religion, it is plain that they held Refistance to be lawful in these Cases, though it be not to be found in their Catechism, nor in the Book of Homilies: For if they had thought it utterly unlawful to affift Subjects againft torannical Princes, or that St. Paul had threatned it with Damnation, they must have been willing to purchase it at a very dear Rates fince they applied a whole Year's Revenue of all the Benefices of England, to refift the Ordinance of God. By this it appears, that the new modify Doctrine of submitting to all Sorts of lawless Oppression is Madness and Innovation, and wholly unknown to the Compilers of our Homilies. So if they who now hold the same Opinion, be in an Error, they err with their Fathers, with the Church and Parliament of England, and with most Then they do err in of the Protestants in Europe, in all Ages, good Company.

155. And where was absolute Passive Obedience, when the Protestant Princes of Germany invited Gustavus Adolphus, King of Sweden, to come into Germany to affift them against their lawful Prince, for persecuting of them; and when the Protestants joined with him upon his Arrival; and when King Charles I. affifted them with Men from England?

156. Bishop Jewel, one of those that wrote the Homilies, saith in the Defence of his Apology, p. 16. That neither Luther, Melancthon, &c. taught the People to rebel against their Prince, but only to defend themselves by all lawful Means against Oppression, as did David against King Saul. So do the Nobles in France at this Day: They feek not to kill, but to fave their own Lives, as they have protested by publick Writing to the World. As for us, we are Strangers unto their Case; they themselves are best acquainted with the Laws and Constitutions of their Country; and therefore are best able to yield Account of the Grounds and Reasons of their Doings.

er

Π,

ne

e,

e-

a-

at 7 ors

dy

nt

nd

el,

at 3 od

ort

the

be.

ind

ıy,

ort .

ous

181

713-

CE-

th-

the ro-

ro-

ful

nite.

ft's

the

MiA.

to

too

ded

reld be.

rif

1 -

na-

ion,

157. Bishop Bilson, in his Book of the true Difference between Christian Subjection and unchristian Rebellion, (dedicated to Queen Elizabeth) in Defence of the Protestants of France, against the unjust Oppressions of their King, saith, I will not rashly pronounce all that refift to be Rebels: Cases may fall out in Christian Kingdoms where People may plead their Right against the Prince, and not be charged with Rebellion. As if a Prince shall go about to subject his Kingdom to a foreign Realm, or change the Form of the Commonwealth, from Empire to Tyranny, or neglect the Laws established by common Confent of the Prince and People, to execute his own Pleasure: In these and other Cases, which might be named, if the Nobles and Commons join together to defend their ancient and accustom'd Liberty. they may not be accounted Rebels.

158. In King Charles the First's Reign, we have the Judgment of Bishop Abbot, that the Case of the primitive Christians and us differs in this, That they bad no Legal Right for their Religion, but were subject to the meer Pleasure of the Government; and whilst it was fo, they made no Resistance. But under Constantine the Emperor, they had Laws on their Side, then they allowed of Resistance.

159. Sleyden, Com. 1. 8. tells us, that Luther had always taught That the Magistrate might not be resisted; and there was a little Book

Book of his extant upon that Subject ... But when the Lawyers in a Conference, proved, that Refistance was allowed by the Laws in some Cases, Luther ingenuously professed. That he did not know the Lawfulness of it before; and then said, That being the Gospel doth not bar, nor abolish the Laws of the State, as he had always taught; and because many Things might so happen, that not only Matter of Right, but also the Force and Necessity of Conscience minht esafion us to arm , therefore an Affectation might be entered into to defend our solves in Case Casar himself should make War upon us, or any one else in Cæsar's Name. In another Book of his he warned all Men in general, That they should not obey the Magistrate, if he raised the Militia for such a War. ty four Protestant Cities, which entered into an Affociation as with Rebellion, say they, there is nothing at all in it; and be knows; whis Conscience, that we are wronged. If he had stood to his former Compacts and Decrees, we also should have done our Duty; but because be bas broken them, and besides our Obedience is due to God in the first Place, let bim lay the Blame upon bimself : For being be endeavours the Destruction of our Religion and Liberty, he gives us Cause to oppose him with a good Conscience: For in that Case it is lares ful to resist, as may be made appear, both from sacred and prophand History. For unjust Violence is by no Means the Ordinance of God; weither are we any otherwise bound to him, than upon Performance of the Conditions upon which he was made Emperor.

161. The Citizens of Magdeburgh fay, That they could not be preved guilty of Rebellion, either by the Low of God, on the Low of Man: That those who took up Arms against them made War upon Christ bimfelf, &c. Every Body easily understands, how utterly unlawful it is to offer any Violence to us. Sleyd. Com. I. ii.

162. Melantibon was of the same Opinion as Luther, as to the Lawfulness of Refistance as in many Places of his Writings it doth appear; as was St. Chryfostom before them both; and in his Commentary on Proverbs xxiv. 21, 22, he faith, The Goffel albus us to make Use of politick Laws, which are reasonable: Nav. if a lawful Defence were not allowed by the Gospel, the Gospel itself would be transformed into a State Doctrine, and would establish infinite Slavery, which it does not. And in his common Places, called Vindicta, upon these Words of our Saviour, He that takes the Sword, Small perish by the Sword, he fays, For a Man to take the Sword, is to arow it when it is not put into his Hands by the Laws; therefore he who offers unjust Violence, takes the Sword: But on the other hand, he who uses a just Defence, does not take the Sword, but he draws a Sward which the Laws put into his Hands! And in his Commentary on Rom. xiii. upon these Words. Wherefore ye must needs be subject, not only for Wrath, but also for Conscience sake; he says, That there Words do concern not only the Subject, but also the Magistrates Magistrates theinselves, who, when they turn Tyrants, do over three the Ordinance of God, no less than the seditions; and therefore their Consciences are guilty too, because they obey not the Ordinance of God; that is, the Laws, which they ought to obey: Therefore the Threat a nings, which are here set down, do pertain likewise to them. Let all Persons therefore, by the Severity of this Command be moved, not to think the Violation of the Constitution to be a light Sin.

and Friendly Admonition to the Republick of the Switzers, discourses much of his Country's throwing off the Yoke of Oppression, and reckons that St. Paul was of the same Mind, when he said, But if then mayest be free, use it nother: Which Eternal Counsel of God, our valiant Ancestors following with undaunted Courage, were blessed with wonderful Successes, Gr. And in his Opus Articularum, Art. 40, 41, 42, he says, They deserve what they suffer subo lie under Oppression, and a great deal more; they have no Wrong done them; he pids them perish with their Oppressor. He says, that the dreadful Plagues that followed the Jews, Jer. xv. 3, 4, upon account of the Wickedness of Manassich, and the Blood which he shed in Jerusalem, were most just Punishments, and deservedly insticted upon that People, because they suffer'd him to do it, &c.

delinquentibus (a Book approved by St. Athanasius, who calls him a new Elias) p. 1098, declares, That he believed it was lawful to resist Kings under the Old Testament, and also to put them to Death, in Case of Idolatry, which he maintains the Arians were guilty of 13

14

00

be

of die

in-

he

it

nis

al

ay. pel

ta-

ion

bat

n to

the

But

ord,

id in

e ye

Take;

o the rates

wards Julian, saith to this Effect, That the Christian Soldiers feed under this Insidel Emperor, and where their Religion was not concerned, made Conscience of obeying him; but where, indeed, it came to the Caule of Christ, there they made as much Conscience of disheying him. Aug. in Pf. 124.

167. It was the Mifery of most of the Protestants in other Countries, as well as those in Germany, in the Beginning of their Reformation, to fall under Oppression, particularly the Brench, Scotch and Duteb Protestants: And it is well known they all defended themselves, and used Refistance, which, in Swiland, ended in an established Reformation of the Protestant Religion; in Hela lend, it ended in an absolute Freedom; both from the Berill and Spanish Yoke; and in France, ended in a free Exercise of their Religion, but was foon interrupted by the true Popils Raith and Priendship of a Massacre; so that they were forced to fight all over again, and who are now under the same Bondage of Tyranny and Oppression again. I defire that it may be observed, that neither these Germans, Scotch, Dutch, nor French, in their field War, ever pretended that their Religion was established by Lawy and thereby made a Part of the Government of their Country, which Men, by their Allegiance, are bound to defends; but they uled were engaged in those Resistances; and it were endless to cite all the soriein Divines who look'd on, and applauded them, and called them The Lord's Battles.

absolute and unmixed; they governed at Pleasure; they made Laws, and unmade them again, and had the Sovereign Power of Life and Death, for which Reason the Christians could with no Pretence resist the Violence of those Times, or defend themselves against the Wrongs which were done them. Now, while their Condition continued thus, the Christians were killed, but did not kill: Notwithstanding, when under Constantine the Emperor, they were rather for killing, than being killed; and having vanquished several Usurpers, and Lucinius the Emperor, they threw off the Yoke of Persecution.

Tyrannical Will of Princes, 'tis strange that neither of the Prophets Elista, or Elisah, nor Azariah, nor David, with his Followers, nor the Jews, under their Kings, nor the Primitive Christians after their Religion was established by Laws, nor any of the ancient Fathers, nor any of the Reformed Churches, should not have known this Doctrine of Absolute Passive Obedience to the Will and Pleafure of Tyrannical Princes.

Account whatsoever, then were all those People guilty of Rebellion, who, in all Ages, have resisted or turned out their evil and destructive Kings and Governors; then the Jews were guilty of this Sin, for turning out several of their Kings, without any Appointment from God in Scripture. So likewise the Primitive Christians did involve themselves under the Guilt of St. Paul's Damnation, for resisting of their Emperors; and, likewise, the Christians, in all Ages, who have resisted, or turn'd out their evil Princes, &c. And then Athanasius, (the supposed Author of the Creed) and those Christians with them, did also come under the Guilt of St. Paul's Damnation for approving of Caliritanus's Book, which, according to the Doctrine of absolute Passive Obedience, was a treasonable and rebellious Book; for the Incendiaries to Rebellion are as guilty as they that are actually in it.

Obedience to any but the Laws of God, and to the Laws of the Land, which is most certainly due, and no otherwise. And for any of our Nobility, or Gentry, &c. who had any Hand in the later Revolution, to suffer any other absolute Passive Obedience to be preached, or any Member of either House of the Convention Parliament, is to suffer themselves to be called damn'd Rebels and Traytors, and the Revolution a damn'd Rebellion.

*

17 1. He that lets any Perlon whatfoever destroy him, contrary to Law, when it is in his Power to preserve his Life by desending himself, does tacitly consent to his own Death, which he is obliged to desend by the Law of Nature, and therefore is guilty of his own Blood, as well as he that destroys him; whereas by desending himself, there can be but one guilty of Blood, (which is the Invader) in which Desence, if he kills the other, his Blood lies at his own Door; by which it follows that Passive Obedience to unjust Violence is a Sin, but resisting such Violence is no Sin, but the Duty of every Man. The first Duty which I owe is to God, the Second to myself, in preserving myself, &c the third to my Parent and Sovereign, in obeying of them in all Things reasonable and lawful.

r72. The Doctrine of Passive Obedience without Reserve, is charging God with as palpable a Contradiction, as any two Things can be, it being diametrically opposite to the Law of Self Preservation, which is the Law of Nature, and the Decree of the Almighty, which Law is sacred, and not to be infringed by any Man.

173. It is not the Doctrine of the Gospel, or of Jesus Christ, to be passive beyond the Laws and Customs of the Country; this were to make God the Author or Approver of all the Persecutions and innocent Blood that has been spilt in the World by evil Princes and Governors. Whereas God never commanded any Thing contrary to the Law of Nature.

ty in their Lives, till they have forfeited them by the Laws of their Country.

8

L

È

1

W

)-

1-60 ne

ot

ill

l-

nd

of.

p-, ve. d's.

he eir

of.

the.

k,

to.

ive.

the late

be:

Par-

and;

171.

Christian, then the Law of a Country makes it Death to be a Christian, then they are to lay down their Lives for Christ's Sake. This is the only Case wherein the Gospel requires Passive Obedience, when the Laws are against a Man, and this was the Case of the first Christians.

of those Rights and Privileges which we have already, that it encourages us to procure more Liberties and Franchises, if we can come honestly by them; read 1 Cor. vii. 21, 22, 23, with Dr.

Hammond's Paraphrase upon them.

for when the chief Captain commanded him to be scourged, he said unto the Centurion, Is it lawful for you to scourge a Roman uncondemned? Although it is very plain, that he and Silas, who suffered with him, had offended as they were accused, and were guilty of breaking the Roman Laws, by teaching Customs which were not lawful for them to receive or observe; and the Magistrates of Philippi, one of the chief Civies of Macedonia, having put them in Prison, and beaten them for it, would afterwards have let them go, but St. Paul said, that they had beaten them allegally, and they would not depart out of Prison, and the Magistrates came and belought them, and brought them out, Acts xvi. 12, 36, 37, 39 and xxii. 24, 25.

178. According to St. Paul's Exhortation to the Romans, all Magistrates are the Powers that be (he does not say the supreme Powers that be) if St. Paul had faid the Power that is, is ordained of God, it would have inferred only the supreme, because he would then have spoken in the fingular Number. But he saying, That the Powers that be, were ordained of God, does imply that all Magistrates are those Powers. Then according to the Saying of St. Paul, the Lord Mayor, and all the Aldermen of London, and all Constables, are St. Paul's Powers: Now all those Powers are chosen, Vox Populi, Vox Dei: To resist any of these Powers in the Administration or executing of the Laws, is a Sin, and every Sin in its Nature is damnable, without Repentance and Forgiveness of God: Yet these Powers may be refisted, prosecuted, and punished, according to the Nature of his, or their Crimes. Now, can any Man say, that these Magistrates are ordained of God, or have their Power from God, any more than that all Men are ordained of God, and have their Lives and Strength from him, which is their Power, and in the executing of this Power, they have Power to do Good or Evil? Before they are chosen Magis trates, they have no more Powerthan other Men, but when cho. fen, the Law is their Power, beyond which they cannot go, without incurring the Penalty thereof.

Legislative Authority of this Nation, the Three Estates in Parliament affembled, who are the supreme Powers, the Powers that be, who have Power to make or annihilate Laws, and these Powers are as much the Ordinance of God, as any Powers whatfoever; and if these Powers are not St. Paul's Powers, then there neither is, nor can be any fuch Power or Powers in this Nation, that are, or must be irresistible, according to St. Paul To resist these Powers in making or unmaking of Law, is a dampable Sin: But when these Persons are separated from the Legislative Author rity, they are but private Persons, except such of those Persons that are Magistrates, who have no more Power than other Persons, and are as punishable by the Laws of their own making, the King excepted, as any other Person; the chiefest of these Powers is the King, because in him is the executive Part of these Powers, which is the putting the Powers of the Laws in Execution; now all Persons commissioned by him, as the Lord Chancellor, Judges, or any other Magistrates, are but the Administrators of those Powers which the supreme Powers, the Legislators, have made, which are the Laws: Now, if any of these Judges, or Magistrates, notwithfranding any Commission, or pretended Commission, act contrary to the Administration of these Powers of the Law, they are punishable by Law, according to the Nature of their Crime, and are accountable, censurable, and punishable by the Legislative Powers.

d a b v

Ho off to H

179. St. Paul's Powers, according to our Constitution, are the

180. There is more Reason to believe that the Doctrine of abfolute Passive Obedience is a damnable Doctrine, than that refsting the supreme Magistrate upon any Account whatsoever is damnable, because that Doctrine is inconsistent with those glorious Attributes of God, by which we believe him a God of infinite Love, Mercy and Compassion to all Mankind, and no Respecter of Persons, for that Doctrine makes him an unmerciful, cruel, barbarous and tyrannical God, in making all Mankind, that they may be used as Beasts, at the Will and Pleasure of a sew of their Fellow Creatures, who are but their Equals, 'till they make them supreme Head or Governors.

e

d

e

-

ly

n-ofe

efe

p,

nd

4.

eş.

of

en

m,

CY

311

10.

th-

the lia-

be, vers

CI);

ther

are,

heie

Sin:

thor

that ons,

Ling

s the hich

w all es, or wers

h are vith-

trary nish-

e ac-

wers.

181. With what Ignorance do some affert, that Adam was an abfolute Monarch? For that the Father of a Family governs by no other Law, than by his Will and Pleasure, and the Father is not to be refisted by his Child; and that Adam had a monarchical, abfolute, supreme, paternal Power; and that all kingly Authority is a fatherly Authority, and therefore irrefiftible, and that no Laws can bind the King, or annul this Authority; how could Adam be an absolute Monarch, when God gave him the Herbs bur in common with the Beafts, Gen, i. 29, 30. Can it be thought that God gave him an absolute Authority of Life and Death over Man, who had not Authority to kill any Beast to satisfy his Hunger, as was permitted to Noah and his Sons? Gen ix. 5 where God fays, Every moving Thing that moveth, shall be Meat for you, even as the Herbs have I given you all Things. Is it not as reasonable to believe, that God would have curfed Adam, if he had killed his Son Abel. as Cain for killing him? Cain was very fenfible every one had by the Law of Nature, a Right to kill him for being guilty of Blood, when he faid, Every one that found him fould flay bim, Gen. iv. 14. God made no Exemption to the greatest Man living, who should be guilty of innocent Blood, when he faid, He that sheddeth Man's Blood, by Mansball his Blood be shed, Gen. ix. Neither Noah, nor his Sons were exempted from this great Law, and therefore could have no absolute Authority; fince God has no where given any Man such Authority, there can be no such lawful Authority, for the Community cannot make themselves Slaves by investing such an Authority in any Man: Should they do it, it is not binding, it being a Sin against the Law of Nature, which is the Law of God, which makes all Men equal, and no Men Slaves.

182. The first Fathers of Mankind after the Flood, had not the Exercise of Royal Power; and whatsoever they had was equally devolved to every one of their Sons, as appears by the Examples of Noah, Shem, Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, and their Children. The first King we read of in Scripture, was Nimrod, King of Babylon, the fixth Son of Cush, the Son of Ham, Noah's youngest and accurred Son. This Kingdom was set up about 130 Years after the Flood, who was chosen by the People, or else he could not have been

hees King, for Cwh, Ham, with his elder Brother, and his Fa-ther Noab were then living, who were not Kings. 183. If Noab was Heir to Adam, I ask which of Noah's Sons was Heir to him? For, if by Right it descended to all his Sons, then it must have descended to all their Sons, and so on : If to then are all Men become equal and independent, as being the Offforing of Adam and Noah: If it descended only to the eldest, and fo on, then there can be but one lawful Monarch in the World, and who that is, is impossible to be found out; fo that paternal, monarchical Authority, take it which way you will, it comes to nothing at alla 184 Where human Institution gives it not the First-born bas no Right at all above his Brethren, as the Bp. of Exon acknowledges.

185. If a Government, say some, may be disturbed for any unlawful Proceedings of the Governor or his Ministers, how can any Go-vernment be safe? To which I answer, That it is not lawful for a few Persons to oppose their Prince; and it is impossible for one, or a few oppressed Men to differs the Government much, where the Body of the People do not think themselves concerned in it, and that the Consequences seem not to threaten all; yea, when it does, yet in Matters of leffer Moment, the People are not very forward to diffure the Government; as in King Charles the Second's Time, when the Charters were condemned, and feized upon, in order to make us Slaves, and the Laws perverted to the Lois of many innocent Lives, and the Goals filled with Differens for worshipping God, according to their Consciences, and many other Oppressions, too many to insert; and yet they did not sent for a foreign Power, nor rise against the Government, nor preach Sedition, though their Perfecution was much greater than against the Church in King James's Reign. I fay, till the Mifchief be grown general, and the Defigns of the Rulers become notorious. then, and then only, will the People be for righting themselves.

186. Wholoever, either Ruler or Subject, by Force goes about to invade the Rights of either Prince or People, and lays the Foundation for overturning the Constitution, and Frame of any just Government, he is guilty of the greatest Crime, I think a Man is capable of, being to answer for all these Mischies of Blood, Rapine and Defolation, which the breaking to Pieces of Governments brings on a Country, and he who does it, is justly to be accounted one who refifts the Ordinance of God, and the common Enemy and Pest of Mankind.

18 AU 65 FINIS

Hoods, who was chosen by the People," or also he could not have